

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Abbreviations	ix

Introduction	1
---------------------	----------

PART I: STRUCTURE

1 Public, Private, and Non-Profit: A Presentation of the Actors	19
2 The Non-Profit Sector	25
2.1 Its Special Role in American Society	25
2.2 Its Most Powerful Members: The Foundations	30
3 Two Ways of Discussing the Relationship between the Sectors When They Work Abroad	34
3.1 Cultural Hegemonic Theory	34
3.2 Control, Ideology and Dependency	38

PART II: IDEOLOGY

4 Basic Values and Ideas	54
4.1 Defining Politics: Conservatism and Liberalism	54
4.2 Defining the National Interest: Realism and Idealism	60
5 Change and Continuity: Contemporary and Historical Contexts	66
5.1 U.S. Foreign Policy in the Post-Cold War Era	66
5.2 The Economic, Security and Democratic Doctrines	79
5.2.1 Eastern Europe and the Doctrines 1989-1995	87
6 Aid to Eastern European Media: The Case	98
6.1 Education for Its Own Sake or for the National Interest?	99
6.2 Conservatism and Liberalism	110
6.3 A U.S.-Style Media: The First Amendment and the Market	128

6.4 Strategies: From Training and Education to Institution-Building and Civil Societies	143
6.4.1 1989-1991: Euphoria	144
6.4.2 1991-1992: Promoting Independent Media for Its Own Sake or for the National Interest?	146
6.4.3 1992: The Non-Profit Sector Takes the Lead	152
6.4.4 1993-1994: Building Civil Societies and Networks	156
6.4.5 1995: A Sustainable Media Environment	161

PART III: ORGANIZATION

7 A Theoretical Framework	169
7.1 Coordination Theory and Institutionalism	169
7.2 Policy Network Analysis	172
7.3 Sociometry	179
8 Actors and Content	181
8.1 Identifying Linking-Pin Organizations	181
8.2 Exchange, Communication, and Normative Contents	185
9 The Interaction Among Individuals	191
9.1 Boundary Role Occupants	191
9.2 Strong Leaders: Alan Neuharth and George Soros	198
10 Power Positions, and Ideological Agreement and Disagreement	207
10.1 Tensions Increase: The Fund vs. the USAID and USIA	207
10.2 From Market to Network	211
10.3 Towards Decentralization, Formalization and Hierarchy	214
10.4 The Soros Foundations and the Network Approach	222
Conclusion	227
References	243
Interviews	243
Congressional Hearings	245
Organizational Material	248
Literature	252