

Contents

Preface vii

1	Phonological awareness and reading	1
	What is phonological awareness?	1
	Phonemes and other speech units	2
	Cause and effect in the relationships between phonological awareness and reading	4
	1. Data on illiterate people	5
	2. Studies of people who read non-alphabetic scripts	8
	3. The development of phonological awareness in childhood	10
	One-to-one correspondence tasks	15
	How long is “crocodile”?	17
	Onset and rime and levels of phonological awareness	18
	Rime and alliteration	22
	The origins of rhyming	24
	Conclusion	26
2	How children read words	29
	Different ways to read a word	29
	The evidence on the different strategies	31
	Conclusions	46
3	Spelling and phonological awareness	49
	Invented spelling	49

Conventional spelling and the phonological code	53
Do children read and spell in different ways?	57
Conclusions	61
4 How children read and write new words	63
Phonological scripts and unfamiliar words	63
Analogies and reading	65
Spelling	75
The connection between analogy and phonological awareness	77
5 Comparisons with backward readers and spellers	79
Age matches and the phonological code	81
Reading level matches and the phonological code	82
Poor spellers and the phonological code	91
Conclusions	94
6 Correlations and longitudinal predictions	95
The need for correlations	95
Two kinds of correlation	96
Phonological units and the two types of correlation	97
Simultaneous correlations and the detection of phonemes	97
Longitudinal studies and the detection of phonemes	103
Studies over longer time periods	106
7 Teaching children about sounds	117
The need for "training studies"	117
Educational studies of the phonological connection	118
Teaching children about both phonemes, and onset and rime	121
8 Do children learn to read (and fail to learn to read) in different ways from each other?	127
Differences among normal readers	128
Differences among poor readers	130
Spelling difficulties and individual differences	137
Conclusions	139
9 Theories about learning to read	141
Two requirements for a developmental theory	141
Marsh's four stages	142
Frith's three phases and six steps	144
A theory about causes	146
Later developments	149
References	151
Author index	159
Subject index	163