

CONTENTS

|                                                                                                       |     |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Acknowledgments                                                                                       | ix  |
| Preface                                                                                               | xi  |
| Chronological Table                                                                                   | 2   |
| Introduction                                                                                          | 3   |
| ONE Twelfth-Century Platonism and the Pursuit of Wisdom                                               | 11  |
| 1. The Twelfth-Century Renaissance                                                                    | 11  |
| 2. The School of Chartres                                                                             | 19  |
| 3. "Ipsius Veritatis Arcanum": The Timaeus at Chartres                                         | 28  |
| 4. Integumentum : The Figural Significance of theAuctores                           | 36  |
| 5. Hugh of St. Victor and the Chartrians                                                              | 49  |
| 6. From Philosophy to Poetry                                                                          | 66  |
| TWO Philosophy and Experience: Boethius, MartianusCapella, and their Twelfth-Century Commentators | 74  |
| 1. Poetry and Argument in the De consolatio-        ne philosophiae                       | 74  |
| 2. The De nuptiis Philologiae et Mercurii                                                      | 83  |
| 3. Psychology in Guillaume's Glosses on Boethius                                                      | 92  |
| 4. The Commentaries of Bernardus Silvestris                                                           | 104 |
| THREE The Poetry of the Twelfth-Century Schools                                                       | 126 |
| 1. Humanism and Subjectivity                                                                          | 126 |
| 2. Poetry and Pedagogy                                                                                | 144 |
| FOUR Form and Inspiration in the Poetry of BernardusSilvestris                                    | 152 |
| 1. The Mathematicus                                                                            | 153 |
| 2. The De mundi universitate                                                                   | 158 |

CONTENTS

|       |                                                    |     |
|-------|----------------------------------------------------|-----|
| FIVE  | Nature and Grace: The Allegories of Alain de Lille | 187 |
|       | 1. The De planctu naturae                   | 188 |
|       | 2. The Anticlaudianus                       | 211 |
| SIX   | The Poetry of the Schools and the Rise of Romance  | 220 |
| SEVEN | Chartrian Allegory and the World                   | 242 |
|       | 1. The Architrenius                         | 242 |
|       | 2. Jean de Meun and the Chartrians                 | 255 |
|       | Appendix                                           | 267 |
|       | Bibliography                                       | 273 |
|       | Index                                              | 285 |