
Contents

About the Editors	ix
List of Contributors	xi
Foreword—Keith Oatley	xvii
Preface	xix

PART I GENERAL ASPECTS

Chapter 1	The cognition–emotion debate: a bit of history Richard S. Lazarus	3
Chapter 2	The philosophy of cognition and emotion William Lyons	21
Chapter 3	Basic emotions Paul Ekman	45
Chapter 4	Research methods in cognition and emotion W. Gerrod Parrott and Paula Hertel	61
Chapter 5	Cognition, emotion, conscious experience and the brain Jeffrey A. Gray	83
Chapter 6	Neuropsychological perspectives on affective styles and their cognitive consequences Richard J. Davidson	103
Chapter 7	The role of the self in cognition and emotion Michael Lewis	125

PART II COGNITIVE PROCESSES

Chapter 8	Selective attention and anxiety: a cognitive–motivational perspective Karin Mogg and Brendan P. Bradley	145
Chapter 9	The cognitive science of attention and emotion Gerald Matthews and Adrian Wells	171
Chapter 10	Mood and memory Henry C. Ellis and Brent A. Moore	193
Chapter 11	Organization of emotional memories Sven-Åke Christianson and Elisabeth Engelberg	211
Chapter 12	Autobiographical memory Helen Healy and J. Mark G. Williams	229
Chapter 13	Inhibition processes in cognition and emotion: a special case Tim Dalgleish, Andrew Mathews and Jacqueline Wood	243
Chapter 14	Prospective cognitions Andrew K. MacLeod	267
Chapter 15	Unintended thoughts and images Frank Tallis	281
Chapter 16	Facial expressions Paul Ekman	301
Chapter 17	Distinguishing unconscious from conscious emotional processes: methodological considerations and theoretical implications Arne Öhman	321
Chapter 18	Self-regulation, affect and psychosis: the role of social cognition in paranoia and mania Richard P. Bentall and Peter Kinderman	353
Chapter 19	The early emergence of emotional understanding and appraisal: implications for theories of development Nancy L. Stein and Linda J. Levine	383

PART III EMOTIONS

Chapter 20	Anger Leonard Berkowitz	411
Chapter 21	Disgust: the body and soul emotion Paul Rozin, Jonathan Haidt and Clark R. McCauley	429

Chapter 22	Anxiety and anxiety disorders Colin MacLeod	447
Chapter 23	Panic and phobias Richard J. McNally	479
Chapter 24	Sadness and its disorders Mick J. Power	497
Chapter 25	Positive affect Alice M. Isen	521
Chapter 26	The self-conscious emotions: shame, guilt, embarrassment and pride June Price Tangney	541
Chapter 27	Jealousy and envy Martin P. East and Fraser N. Watts	569
PART IV THEORIES IN COGNITION AND EMOTION
Chapter 28	Network theories and beyond Joseph P. Forgas	591
Chapter 29	Attributional theories of emotion Ian H. Gotlib and Lynn Y. Abramson	613
Chapter 30	Appraisal theory Klaus R. Scherer	637
Chapter 31	Multi-level theories of cognition–emotion relations John D. Teasdale	665
Chapter 32	Self-organization of cognition–emotion interactions Marc D. Lewis and Isabela Granic	683
PART V APPLIED ISSUES
Chapter 33	Cognition and emotion research and the practice of cognitive–behavioural therapy Zindel V. Segal, Mark A. Lau and Paul D. Rokke	705
Chapter 34	Psychodynamic theory and technique in relation to research on cognition and emotion: mutual implications Drew Westen	727
Chapter 35	Mechanisms of change in exposure therapy for anxiety disorders Susan Mineka and Cannon Thomas	747
Chapter 36	Creativity in the domain of emotion James R. Averill	765

Chapter 37	Forensic applications of theories of cognition and emotion Debra A. Bekerian and Susan J. Goodrich	783
Chapter 38	Cognition and emotion: future directions Tim Dalgleish and Mick J. Power	799
Author index		807
Subject index		831