

Preface	xi
Chapter 1: Introduction and Overview	1
Definition of Motivational Psychology	1
Characteristics of a “Good” Motivational Explanation	2
Problem- Versus Theory-Focused Textbooks	4
The Nature of Being	6
Pre-Darwinian Thought	6
The Darwinian Revolution	9
Metaphors and the Nature of Being	11
Definition and Properties of Metaphors	12
Metaphors and the Study of Human Motivation	13
Overview of the Book	14
Summary	17
PART I: THE MACHINE METAPHOR IN MOTIVATION	19
Chapter 2: Psychoanalytic, Ethological, and Sociobiological Theories: Mechanism in Biology	23
Freud’s Psychoanalytic Theory of Motivation	23
Background Influences	25
The Mechanical Concepts	27
Homeostasis and Hedonism	28
Psychological Structures	30

Formal Motivational Models	33
Further Integration of Models of Motivation and Energy Constructs	35
Testing the Theory	37
Ethology and Mechanism	41
Definition and Characteristics of Instincts	42
Instincts in Ethological Theory	44
Pertinent Research	46
Criticism of Ethological Energy Models	48
Sociobiology	48
Self-Testing Some Hypotheses	50
Basic Concepts	50
Contrast to Darwinian Theory	52
Empirical Evidence	53
Summary	57
General Summary	58
Chapter 3: Drive Theory	59
Freud and Hull: Some Conceptual Comparisons	59
Mechanistic Learning Theory Prior to Hull	61
The Drive Concept	63
Early Experimental Investigations Guided by the Concept of Drive	63
Hull's Conception of Drive	64
The Integration of Drive and Habit	65
Empirical Support for Drive Theory	67
Evidence for Drive as a Pooled Energy Source	70
Secondary (Learned) Drives	72
Fear as a Learned Drive	73
An Alteration in the Conception of Action	75
Incentives	75
Latent Learning	75
Contrasting Drive and Incentive	78
Incentive, Learning, and Purposive Behavior	78
Anxiety	79
The Manifest Anxiety Scale	81
Conflict	86
Miller's Conflict Model	87
Frustration	93

The Brown-Farber Theory of Frustration	93
Amsel's Theory of Frustration	95
Social Facilitation	97
The Drive Theory Interpretation	97
Cognitive Dissonance	101
Traditional Motivational Research	105
Resistance to Extinction	106
Is Internal Arousal Necessary for the Dissonance Experience?	108
Summary	109
Chapter 4: Gestalt Theory and Its Derivatives: Field Theory and Balance	111
Gestalt Psychology	111
Field Theory	113
The Life Space	115
Relation to Hullian Theory	122
Empirical Research	124
Conflict	125
Frustration and Regression	131
Task Recall and Task Resumption	133
Substitution	137
Balance Theory	140
Some Doubts	144
Comparison to Field Theory	145
Summary	145
Self-Consistency	146
Summary	147
Epilogue to the Machine Metaphor	149
PART II: GODLIKE METAPHORS IN HUMAN MOTIVATION: HUMANS AS ALL-KNOWING	153
Chapter 5: Expectancy-Value Theories: Humans as All-Knowing Decision Makers	159
Criticisms of the Mechanistic Concepts of Habit and Drive	159
Theoretical Assumptions and Relation to Decision Theory	161
Lewin's Resultant Valence Theory	163
Level of Aspiration	163
Atkinson's Theory of Achievement Motivation	168
The Need for Achievement	170

Need for Achievement and Economic Development	172
Achievement Change	175
Achievement Needs Among Females	178
Personality Measurement, the Need for Achievement, and Theory Construction	179
A Theory of Achievement Motivation	180
An Experimental Demonstration	182
Hope of Success	182
Fear of Failure	185
Resultant Achievement Motivation	187
Further Elaboration of the Model	187
Combining the Motives	188
Derivations from the Theory and Supporting Evidence	189
Comparison with Hullian and Lewinian Theory	199
Summary of Achievement Theory	201
Rotter's Social Learning Theory	202
Basic Concepts	202
The Determinants of Action	206
Representative Research	209
Personal Responsibility	212
Summary of the Social Learning Approach	218
General Summary	219
Chapter 6: Attributional Theories of Motivation:
Persons as Scientists	221
Personal Construct Theory	222
Scientific Behavior as a Model for Human Behavior	223
Philosophical Position: Constructive Alternativism	225
Formal Theory	225
The Role Construct Repertory Test	227
Emotions	228
Summary: Kelly's Theory	229
Attribution Theory	229
Attribution and Motivation	232
Causal Antecedents	232
Attributions in Animal Experiments	236
Causal Schemata	238
Discounting	242
The Actor-Observer Perspective	243

Summary and Conclusion	246
The Content of Causal Thinking	246
Causal Dimensions (Properties)	248
The Logical Analysis of Causal Structure	248
Empirical Confirmation	252
Motivational Dynamics of Perceived Causality: Expectancy of Success	253
Expectancy Shifts at Skill Versus Chance Tasks: The Social Learning Theory Integration	255
A Confound	256
An Attributional Approach to Expectancy Change	256
Practical Implications of a Stability-Expectancy Linkage	259
Motivational Dynamics of Perceived Causality: Self-Esteem	270
The Locus-Esteem Linkage in Nonachievement Settings	273
Shame and Guilt: Causal Controllability	275
An Attributional Theory of Motivation	277
Other Motivational Sequences	279
Experimental Tests of the Theory Within Achievement Contexts	280
Comparison with Expectancy-Value Theory	284
Summary	284
Epilogue to the Complete Rationality Assumption (the Godlike Metaphor)	287
PART III: GODLIKE METAPHORS IN HUMAN MOTIVATION: HUMANS AS JUDGES	291
Chapter 7: Humans as Evaluating Judges	301
Emotion	302
Definition	302
Arousal Theories	305
Cognitive Theories	308
An Attributional Approach to Emotions	310
Emotions and Motivation	313
Helping Behavior	314
The Effects of Perceived Causality on Helping	314
Helping from an Attributional Perspective	315
Reactions to the Stigmatized: Further Examinations of Help-Giving	323
Aggression	329
Interpersonal Relationships	331

Peer Acceptance and Rejection	331
Marital Happiness and Distress	332
Family Approval and Disapproval	333
Achievement Appraisal	334
Impression Management Techniques	337
Excuse Giving	337
Confession	339
Summary	341
Chapter 8: Review, Theoretical Comparisons, and Final Comments	343
Altruism and Help Giving	344
Aggression	345
Achievement Strivings and Expectancy of Success	347
Affective Antecedents and Consequences	348
Behavioral Change	350
Theoretical Comparisons	351
Genetic Versus Cultural/Learning Determinants	352
Homeostasis	352
Hedonism Versus Mastery as the Basis of Action	353
Math Model	353
Empirical Focus and Range	353
Barriers to the Formulation of a General Theory of Motivation	354
Homeostatic Versus Nonhomeostatic Phenomena	355
Hedonic Versus Nonhedonic Actions	356
Rational and Conscious Versus Irrational and Unconscious Behaviors	358
Principles for the Construction of a General Theory of Motivation	358
A Concluding Note	364
