

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Prologue	V
Donald R. Brown and Joseph Veroff
University of Michigan
 Chapter One
DEVELOPMENT OF THE MOTIVATION FOR PARTICULAR ACTIVITY SCALE	1
Joel O. Raynor and Thomas H. Nochajski
State University of New York at Buffalo
Discussion	17
 Chapter Two
IN THE ATKINSON TRADITION: THE MOTIVATIONAL FUNCTION OF EMOTION	26
Bernard Weiner
University of California at Los Angeles
Attributions Related to Affects	27
Feelings Related to Action	28
General Summary	35
 Chapter Three
CONSCIOUS AND UNCONSCIOUS PROCESSES IN THE PSYCHOLOGY OF MOTIVATION	40
Nathan Brody
Wesleyan University

Chapter Four

MOTIVATIONAL CHAOS: A SIMPLE MODEL	54
--	----

Julius Kuhl

University of Osnabrück

The Concepts of Reflexivity and Interdependence	55
---	----

A Recursive Model of Achievement Motivation	57
---	----

Applications to Atkinson's Theory of Achievement Motivation	60
---	----

Level of Aspiration: Some Preliminary Results	62
---	----

Chapter Five

MATHEMATICAL MODEL OF THE BEHAVIORAL STREAM MEASUREMENT	72
--	----

David Birch

University of Illinois

Chapter Six

USES OF THE COMPUTER IN MOTIVATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY	87
---	----

Virginia Blankenship

Oakland University

Simulation-Generated Research Hypotheses	87
--	----

Computer Presentation of Stimuli	91
--	----

Modelling Empirical Results	91
---------------------------------------	----

Computer Measure of Resultant Achievement Motivation	93
--	----

Test-Retest Reliability	98
-----------------------------------	----

Experimentally-Created Computer Anxiety	100
---	-----

Structural Differences Among the Experimental Situations	102
Advantages and Disadvantages of Computer Use	103
 Chapter Seven
MOTIVATION AND EFFICIENCY OF COGNITIVE PERFORMANCE	107
William Revelle
Northwestern University
Strength of Motivation: The Implications of the Dynamics of Action	108
Task Variables Affecting Efficient Performance	118
Inefficiency as an Inappropriate Tradeoff	120
Summary and Conclusions	126
 Chapter Eight
CONTEXTUALISM AND HUMAN MOTIVES	132
Joseph Veroff
University of Michigan
A Motive is Different at Different Points in the Life-cycle	133
Sub-types of Motives	137
Interaction of Motives: A Typology as a Way to Assess Motives . .	140
Quality of Motives and Values Considered Simultaneously	142
Conclusion	143

Chapter Nine	146
HUMAN VALUES, VALENCES, EXPECTATIONS AND AFFECT: THEORETICAL ISSUES EMERGING FROM RECENT APPLICATIONS OF THE EXPECTANCY-VALUE MODEL
	146
N.T. Feather
The Flinders University of South Australia
Values and Actions	148
Unemployment and Depressive Affect	155
The Role of Affect	162
The Nature of Expectations	165
Chapter Ten
FUTURE TIME PERSPECTIVE: A COGNITIVE-MOTIVATIONAL CONCEPT
	173
Willy Lens
University of Leuven (Belgium)
Theoretical Definitions	173
Operationalizations of Future Time Perspective	175
Future Time Perspective in Experimental Psychology	177
FTP and Cognitive Theories of (Achievement) Motivation	180
Affective Attitude Toward the Future	183
Summary and Conclusion	184
Epilogue	191
David C. McClelland
Harvard University	