Preface	9
Chapter 1. A theory of time perspective	11
1. The temporal dimension of behavior	12
2. The origin of the future in behavior	13
3. The construction of time perspective	15
- Perspective	16
- Temporal signs and their origin	17
- The presence of objects in time perspective	19
4. An operational definition: Measuring time perspective	23
5. Additional aspects of time perspective	26
- An active time perspective	26
- Realism of time perspective: Temporal integration and time competence	28
- Experiential learning and time perspective	31
6. The impact of future time perspective (F.T.P.)	32
- The content of F.T.P.: Its impact on behavior	33
- The impact of the temporal extension of F.T.P.	36
Conclusion	38
Notes	40
Chapter 2. The motivational induction method (MIM)	43
1. The instrument	45
2. Motivational Content Analysis	48
- The purpose of motivational content analysis	49
- The main categories of motivational objects and interactions	50
3. Validity of the MIM	54
- Face validity of the MIM	54
- Validity studies	57
4. MIM reliability and stability of motivation	59
- Coding reliability	60
- Stability of MIM-data	61

6 Contents

5. Additional possibilities of data-collecting by means of the MIM	63
- Frequency of expression and subjective intensity of motivation	64
Notes	65
Chapter 3. Measuring time perspective: the temporal code	67
1. The basic principle	67
2. Justification of the "average" localization	68
3. The life periods of subjects	70
4. The temporal code: The time of objects	73
- Temporal scale in terms of calendar units	75
- Temporal scale in terms of social and biological units	75
- The open-present	75
- References to the past	76
- Atemporal objects	76
5. Reliability of the temporal code and stability of results	77
Conclusion	77
Note	78
Chapter 4. Measuring the extension of the F.T.P.	79
1. Future time perspective profile	79
2. Future time perspective index	81
3. The mean future time perspective	81
A. The median rank of F.T.P.	82
B. The mean extension of F.T.P.	82
- Calendar periods	84
- Social-clock periods	84
Notes	89
Chapter 5. Attitudes towards the personal past, present, and future	91
1. The time attitude scale (T.A.S.)	91
2. The revised time attitude scale: A multi-dimensional scale for the attitude towards the future	97

Chapter 6. Manual of time perspective analysis
(by J.R. Nuttin & W. Lens)	101
1. Coding units and their context	104
2. Description of the code	107
3. The coding technique	111
4. List of examples	124
(Detailed Contents: see p. 101)
Chapter 7. Manual of motivational content analysis
(by J.R. Nuttin & W. Lens)	133
1. Principles of our content analysis	135
2. The structure of the code	137
3. The coding technique	139
4. List of examples	167
(Detailed Contents: see p. 133)
Appendix A. MIM instructions and list of inducers	177
1. Suggestions to the instructor	177
2. Instructions to the subjects	178
3. Complete list of MIM inducers	180
4. Shorter form A of MIM inducers	181
5. Shorter form B of MIM inducers	182
Appendix B. Inventory of motivational categories and Inventory of motivational objects	185
Appendix C. Computer analysis of MIM data
(by W. Lens & A. Gailly)	201
