

Contents

Introduction · 7

1 Inhospitable soil

1171-1649

Religious drama, John Bale, earliest colonial theatre, John Ogilby · 9

2 French polish in a sink of sin

1662-1700

Roger Boyle, Thomas Southerne, the Smock Alley Theatre · 15

3 The lure of London

1693-1707

William Congreve and George Farquhar · 23

4 Sentimental comedies and unsentimental comedians

1709-1778

New Dublin theatres, Charles Shadwell, Richard Steele, Arthur Murphy, James Quin, Peg Woffington and others · 34

5 Fifty pounds a night

1733-1768

Charles Macklin, Spranger Barry, Thomas Sheridan, the decline of Smock Alley, opening of Capel Street and Crow Street theatres · 43

6 A very great man

1766-1773

Oliver Goldsmith · 51

7 The best of its kind

1775-1779

Richard Brinsley Sheridan · 59

8 Truly national

1730s-1800

The theatre in the provinces, the 'National Theatre', John O'Keefe · 72

9 Scenes that are brightest

1802-1863

Kilkenny Private Theatre, more new Dublin theatres, Sheridan Knowles, the lyric theatre · 82

10 The stage Irishman
1827–1890
Tyrone Power, Dion Boucicault, Barry Sullivan and others · 94

11 A delicate exotic fruit
1880–1895
Oscar Wilde · 105

12 The unspeakable Irishman
1892–1929
George Bernard Shaw · 115

13 An ancient idealism
1898–1939
*The Irish Literary Theatre, the National Theatre Society,
Augusta Gregory, Edward Martyn,
William Butler Yeats and others* · 133

14 Great literature in a barbarous idiom
1903–1913
John Millington Synge and his followers · 150

15 Parlour tragedy and kitchen comedy
1908–1955
*Lennox Robinson, T. C. Murray, George Shiels,
Paul Vincent Carroll, M. J. Molloy and others* · 160

16 Green crow and flying wasp
1922–1962
Sean O'Casey · 166

17 The brave new Ireland
After 1928
The Dublin Gate Theatre and Taibhdhearc na Gaillimhe · 174

18 Conservatives and shape-changers
After 1950
*Recent developments, Samuel Beckett, contemporary writers including Hugh Leonard, Brian Friel, Eugene McCabe,
Thomas Murphy, Thomas Kilroy and others* · 184

Acknowledgments · 202

Select bibliography · 203

Index · 205