

CONTENTS

Translator's Preface	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction
The Problem	1
Method	15
Chapter 1. The Factorial Structure of the Judgments
The Common Structure of the Judgment Scales	37
"Halo Effect" and "Logical Error"	49
Specific Structural Differences Dependent on Informational Conditions	58
Individual Differences in Judgmental Structures	68
Summary	77
Chapter 2. Interjudge Reliability and Validity
Interjudge Reliability	81
Validity of the Judgments	96

Digression I: The Validity of Individual Physiognomic Characteristics	104
Digression II: The Validity of Individual Graphological Characteristics	117
Summary	133
Chapter 3. The Utilization of Individual Items of Information in Judgment
The Utilization of Individual Physiognomic Characteristics in Personality Judgments Made on the Basis of Photographs	141
The Utilization of Individual Graphological Characteristics in Personality Judgments Made on the Basis of Handwriting Samples	153
The Combining of Different Impressions into a Summary Judgment	167
Summary	187
Chapter 4. Subjective Patterns of Judgments
Subjective Expected Values	194
Absolute and Relative Judgmental Variances	261
Summary	294
Retrospect	296
Appendix	306
References	314
Author Index	351
Subject Index	361