

Contents

Acknowledgements | vii

List of abbreviations and acronyms | ix

1	Researching knowledge-based aid	1
	Setting the scene 1 Research questions 3 A new way of researching; a new way of working 3 The structure of the book 15
2	The new aid agenda	18
	The changing fashions of development cooperation 18 Aid discourse at the start of the new millennium 25
3	Knowledge for development	32
	The origins of knowledge-based aid 32 Knowledge-based aid 37 Alternative accounts of knowledge and development 49 A concluding comment 52
4	The World Bank or the knowledge bank?	55
	The discovery of knowledge-based aid in the World Bank 55 The World Bank's older knowledge strategies 56 The World Bank's vision of knowledge for development 58 Revising the strategy: the Ramphele review and a shifting focus for the knowledge bank 65 The new architecture of the knowledge bank 70 The knowledge bank in practice: assessing the extent of transformation 90
5	From information management to knowledge sharing: DFID's unfinished revolution	99
	DFID's knowledge discourses 99 DFID's knowledge projects 109 DFID's knowledge products 118 DFID's knowledge practices 121 How should we judge DFID's approach to knowledge and development? 123
6	Knowledge, learning and capacity in the Swedish approach to development cooperation	130
	Historical overview 130 Sida's discourses of knowledge, learning and capacity 133 Sida as a generator of development knowledge 143 Sida's initiatives to support knowledge, learning and capacity development | 145 Knowledge and learning in practice | 147 Conclusion | 152

7 Experience, experts and knowledge in Japanese aid policy and practice	155
Japan's own experience of development 156 Japan's multiple external sources of development expertise 163 Sources of policy knowledge in Japanese development assistance 170 Knowledge-sharing initiatives in a culture of valuing experience 173 Knowledge management in JICA: a new approach 176 Other mechanisms for sharing development knowledge 186 Conclusion on sharing expertise for development 189
8 Conclusions and implications for knowledge, aid and development	196
Where does knowledge-based aid come from, and is it just a passing fashion? 196 Does knowledge-based aid work? 197 Knowledge-based aid or learning-led development? 208 Knowledge-based aid and knowledge, aid and development: concluding thoughts 209
Bibliography	213
Index	230