

CONTENTS

1. Prologue: The Psychologist Confronts Greatness	1
What Is Psychology?, 2; What Is History?, 3; What Is a Psychology of History?, 6
2. Birthrights and Birthmarks: Psychobiological Explanations	9
Genes and Genius, 9; The Human Brain, 19; Ethnicity and Gender, 29; Sociobiology, 38; Psychobiological Psychobiography?, 46
3. Acts, Affects, and Thoughts: Learning-Based and Cognitive Theories	50
Adjusting to the World: Modes of Learning, 50; Perceiving People, 60; Remembering Things and Happenings, 64; Evaluating the World, 73; Mental Twists and Turns in History?, 81
4. The Creative Quest	84
Problem Solving, 84; Originality, 92; Aesthetic Merit, 104; Duplicate Discoveries, 115
5. The Drive to Succeed	123
The Motive Triad, 123; Psychohistory Revisited, 134; The Ultimate Motive for Greatness?, 138
6. Infants, Children, and Teenagers: The Famous in Their Youth	142
Hercules's Cradle: The Impact of Family Background, 144; Students and Schools: The Impact of Education, 158; Outsiders: The Impact of Marginality, 166; Is Genius Born or Made?, 173
7. Life's Prime and Death's Advance: A Life-Span Perspective	180
Age and Achievement, 181; Transformations and Transitions, 198; The Closing Chapter: Achievement Late in Life, 203; Death: The Sequel, 211
8. The Importance of Intelligence	216
Testing IQs in Contemporary Figures, 216; Gauging IQs in Historic Personalities, 223; Complications in Linking Intelligence to Achievement, 227; Prodigies versus Geniuses, 239

---

9. The Importance of Personality	247
Tell-Tale Traits, 248; Patterns of Character, 265; Global Portraits, 276; Culture Mentalities, 278
10. The Significance of Psychopathology	284
Madness and Genius, 284; Self-Destructiveness and Greatness, 297; Stress and Eminence, 307; Is Psychopathology the Cost of Greatness?, 311
11. Violence as a Shaper of History	312
Causes of Violence, 313; Effects of Violence, 328; Caveats: Psychology's Limits, 336
12. The Influence of Attitudes and Beliefs	339
Public Opinion, 339; Ideology, 355; Authoritarianism, 362; Can We Change the World?, 370
13. Imitation, Affiliation, Group Dynamics, and Leadership	375
Admiration, Imitation, and Emulation, 375; Affiliation, Attraction, and Interaction, 384; Group Dynamics, 392; Leadership, 402; Creators as Leaders, 410
14. Epilogue: Has the Psychologist Succeeded?	413
Do Behavioral Laws Even Exist?, 413; Doesn't Sociocultural Context Determine All?, 415; Are the Predictions and Explanations Good Enough?, 418; Is the Enterprise Elitist?, 419; Hasn't a Lot Been Left Out?, 420
Notes	423
References	445
Subject Index	491