

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
1 Varieties of identity-threatening experiences	1
2 Identity and social structure	9
The structural components of identity	11
The identity processes and the principles of their operation	23
Structures and processes in the social context of identity	27
A framework for understanding the social context of identity	35
The effects of social change upon identity	40
The relation of identity to action	43
Some concluding remarks about the framework	44
Methods for studying identity, threat and coping	44
3 The structure of threats	46
The origin of threat	46
The experience of threat	50
Unemployment	52
The social representation of the unemployed	54
Threats to identity created by unemployment	61
Sexually atypical employment	63
Threats to identity created by sexually atypical employment	71
Communalities across threats to identity	75

4 Self-protection at the intra-psychic level	77
The transience of threatened identities	77
What constitutes a coping strategy?	78
Intra-psychic coping strategies	80
Coping powers	107
5 Interpersonal coping strategies	109
Isolation	109
Negativism	113
Passing	115
Compliance	121
6 Intergroup coping strategies	128
Multiple group memberships	128
Group support	130
Group action	136
7 Limits to coping	148
Failure of coping strategies	148
Determinants of coping-strategy choice	149
Phases in coping	158
An example of phases in coping:
unemployment	158
Why persist with suboptimal coping strategies?	166
Consistency and coping	167
Coping and the processes of social comparison	169
Ceasing to cope	176
Summary	178
8 Central tenets of the model of identity, threat and coping	180
Elaborating the framework	180
Propositions of the model	190
References	196
Name index	213
Subject index	219