

C O N T E N T S

---

INTRODUCTION: LACAN'S LANGUAGE AND MINE	1
Positions orienting my view of Lacan and ego psychology • The plan of the book
ONE/LANGUAGE AND PRIMITIVE FUNCTIONING	15
Preverbal organization • Peremptory and nonperemptory need • Preverbal knowledge and thought
TWO/THE OTHER SCENE AND THE OTHER	32
The pleasure principle and the laws of language • The order of the imaginary order • The ego and the Other
THREE/THE EGO, DESIRE, AND THE LAW	44
Wishing and desiring • Lack and anxiety • Desire as the owning of want of unity • Nondefensive motives of the ego
FOUR/TRANSFERENCE AND INTERPRETATION	64
Transference and language • Transference and the language of Lacan • Traces, images, and imaginary competence

Affirmation and negation • Affect and signification • Affective recognition • Transference, treatment, and cure

SIX / THE FATHER OF INDIVIDUAL PREHISTORY AND THE IDEALS OF THE ANALYST

Third terms and the paternal function • Where id was there ego shall be • Subjecthood and worldhood • Phallogentrism, the ideal ego, and the ego ideal • Heroines, heroes, new patients, and allegiance to one psychoanalytic theory
or another

SEVEN / EVENING THE SCORE

References

Index