

CONTENTS

Preface xv

Part 1. Psychology in Organizations

CHAPTER 1. BEHAVIOR WITHIN THE ORGANIZATION 3

Organizational Psychology. Industry—A Place to Study Behavior. Why Study Industrial Psychology? What Psychologists Do in Industry. Other Organizational Settings. Cause and Effect in Behavior. Psychology as a Behavioral Science. The Methods of Psychology Applied to Industry. The History of Industrial Psychology. The Classical Hawthorne Studies. Human Problems in Organizations. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 2. ORGANIZATIONAL CLIMATES 27

Examples of Differing Industrial Climates. Personalities within the Organization. Varieties of Organizational Climates. Some Indicators of Climate. Measurement of Organizational Variation. Dimensions of Organizational Climates. Effects of Climate. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 3. GROUP BEHAVIOR AND INDIVIDUAL ADJUSTMENT 59

The Nature of Groups. Interpersonal Relationships. Levels of Communication. Control in Organizations. Role Behaviors. People with Responsibilities. The Concept of Adjustment. Some Problems of Adjustment. Success and Failure. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 4. INDIVIDUALS IN ORGANIZATIONS 84

Some Elements in Career Planning. Alternatives in Personal Aspiration. Patterns of Career Survival. The Professional Career. From Professional to Manager. The Managerial Career. Development of Personal Skills. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

Part 2. Organizational Structures and Management

CHAPTER 5. INDUSTRIAL AND LABOR ORGANIZATIONS 113

The Meaning of Industry. The Anatomy of the Modern Company. The Organization Chart. The Structures of Labor Unions. The Informal Organization. Status Hierarchies in Industry. Status at Different Ranks. Status within the Union. Organizational Complexity and Human Relations. Toward a Global View of Human Problems. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 6. GOVERNMENT AND OTHER ORGANIZATIONS 141

Government Organizations. Educational Organizations. Community Organizations. Research and Development Organizations. Organizational Rigidity. Characteristics of Organizations. Organizational Change and Theory. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 7. INFLUENCE STRUCTURES AND MARKETING 166

Fund Raising. Public Relations. Psychology in Marketing. The Marketing Concept. The Business and Its Publics. Strategy and Tactics. Purchase Behavior. Advertising. Psychological Factors in Advertising. Selling. Selling Strategy and Tactics. Analysis of the Selling Process. Factors in Selling. Comparison of Advertising and Selling. Psychological Principles and Concepts Applied to Advertising and Selling. Unanswered Questions. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 8. EXECUTIVE BEHAVIOR 203

Functions of Executives. The Criteria of Success. Individual Leadership and the Environment. The Selection of Potential Executives. Executive-development Training. Successful Executive Development. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

Part 3. Motivation and Human Needs

CHAPTER 9. HUMAN NEEDS IN ORGANIZATIONS 231

A Basic Model of Behavior. Motivational Theory. Variations within Individuals. Variations between Individuals. Reactions to Frustration. Common Defensive Behaviors. Patterns of Adjustive Behavior. Toward Satisfying Needs. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 10. ATTITUDES AND SATISFACTIONS 251

Problems and Definitions. Information about Attitudes. The Extent and Nature of Job Dissatisfaction. Professional and Managerial Levels. Worker Job-factor Comparisons. Effects of Attitudes on Productivity. The Psychological Climate for Work. Organizations and Morale. Employee Participation. Work Environment and Morale. Factors Related to Job Attitudes. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 11. NEEDS OF SPECIAL GROUPS 285

The Handicapped Person. The Psychological Aspects of Unemployment. Aging and Work. Psychology of Aging. Retirement. Planning. Women in Organizations. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 12. THE COMMUNITY AS AN ORGANIZATION 312

Environment and Behavior. Importance of Knowing the Community. The Yankee City Studies. Different Types of Communities. Power Structures in the Community. The Business Climate. The Mediana Study. The Foreign Business Climate. Community Classes. Social Forces within the Community. The Struggle for Upward Mobility. Social Class and Personality. Industrialization and the Family. Population and Problems. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

Part 4. Personnel Psychology

CHAPTER 13. PERSONNEL SELECTION 349

The Selection Problem. The Problem of Criteria. Some Available Criteria. The Prediction of Success. Selection and Regulations. The Analysis of Predictor-Criterion Relationships. The Current Status of the Selection Process. The Recruitment of Employees. The Future of Personnel Selection. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 14. TRAINING IN INDUSTRY 382

Demands for Training. A Training-development System. The Role of the Student in the Training System. A Case of a Training-development System. Training-development Systems. The Job Study. Training Objectives. Criterion Measures. Training Procedures. Reinforcement and Motivational Variables. Instructional Variables.

Programmed Instruction and Teaching Machines. Supervision and Leadership. Training and Experimentation. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 15. HUMAN RELATIONS IN SUPERVISION 428

A Historical Perspective. The Nature of Good Supervision. The Multiple Roles of the Supervisor. Empathy in Supervision. Sensitivity Training. The Jobs of the Supervisor. The Supervisor and the Individual. Counseling and Mental Health. Group Decision Procedures. Problem Solving in Human Relations. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 16. LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS 459

The Growth of Unions. Union Constraints on Management. Why Workers Join Unions. Problems within the Union. Institutional Goals. The Union Organization. Labor-union Membership. Officers of the Union. Management Meets the Union. Labor-Management Bargaining. The Settlement of Grievances. The Contract Issues. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

Part 5. Men and Machines

CHAPTER 17. WORK 485

The Perception of Work. Common Characteristics of Work. Sleep, Rest, and Efficiency. Repetitive Work. Methods of Eliminating Boredom. Length of Work Period—Some Problems. Time-and-motion Study. The Working Environment. Financial Incentives as Applied to People at Work. Work and Pay. Measuring Worker Proficiency. Worker Efficiency and the New Technology. A Systems View of Work. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 18. ACCIDENTS AND SAFETY 515

Magnitude of the Problem. The Concept of an Accident. Lost-time Accidents. The Causes of Accidents. The Accident Report. Investigations of Personal Factors Related to Accidents. Environmental Conditions Related to Accidents. Theories of Safety Psychology. The Problem of Accident-prevention Training. Techniques in Motivating Safety. The Engineering Phase of the Safety Problem. Overall Accident-prevention Strategy. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 19. HUMAN-FACTORS ENGINEERING 544

Psychology and Engineering. Goals of Human-factors Engineering. An Example of Human-factors Research. Mainstreams of Human-factors Research. Man-

Machine Systems. Information Theory and Information Processing. Simulators and Computer Simulation. Human-factors Applications. Design Principles and Design Heuristics. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

CHAPTER 20. HUMAN ASPECTS OF SYSTEMS570

Expansion of Psychological Problems. Research and Development. The Organizational Psychologist as Problem Solver. The General System. General-system Factors. Overlap within a General System. Task Analysis. The Human-factors Subsystem. Design Variables of a Subsystem. The Advent of the Computer—A Projection. Toward the Concept of Social Systems. Suggestions for Selective Readings.

Bibliography 603Name Index 651*Subject Index 665