

Contents

List of Illustrations	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction: Saving Shoshana	1
1. Beyond Uncle Tom: A Genealogy of Sentimental Political Storytelling	15
2. Incidents in the Life of a (Volunteer) Slave Girl: The Specter of Slavery and Escapes from History	39
3. The Reading Cure: Oprah Winfrey, Toni Morrison, and Sentimental Identification	79
4. Salvation in His Arms? Rape, Race, and Intimacy's Salve	113
5. In the Shadow of Anarcha: Race, Pain, and Medical Storytelling	145
6. The Abduction Will Not Be Televised: Suffering Hierarchies, Simple Stories, and the Logic of Child Protection in the United States	185
Coda: Lifetime, Anyone? A Meditation on Victims	227
Notes	233
Index	271

Illustrations

- Figure 1. Jessica Lynch speaking after returning home.
Courtesy of AP Images. 1
- Figure 2. Shoshana Johnson, the first African American female POW, was initially discussed in relationship to the other soldiers in her unit. Courtesy of AP Images. 5
- Figure 3. The tragically ironic and ubiquitous picture of Hurricane Katrina survivor Milvertha Hendricks.
Courtesy of AP Images. 37
- Figure 4. Christine Thayer embraces Officer Ryan in Crash.
Courtesy of Photofest. 141