Individuals' Behavior as the Means of Fusing the Influences of Biology
and Context on Development	80
Summary	87
Next Steps	87
4. The Person as an Open, Self-Regulating,
Self-Constructing System	91
Complex Organization and the Concept of System	93
The Person as a Living System	102
System Component Structures and Functions	111
What Can Develop?	135
When Does Development Occur?	143
Next Steps	145
5. Processes and Dynamics
in Developmental Systems Theory	147
Development Described as a
Sequence of Outcomes	148
Outcomes, Processes, and Dynamics	149
Three Types of Change-Related Processes	151
Conditions That Facilitate and Constrain
Change and Development	159
Mechanisms of Change and Development	165
Living Systems Dynamics and
Developmental Processes	168
Stability-Maintaining Processes	173
Incremental-Change Processes	178
Transformational Change Processes	193
Developmental Pathways Through Life
Emerge From the Operation of All Three Processes	200
Summary and Implications	203
Final Steps	206
6. The Present as Prologue to the Future	207
Implications for Research Questions	208
