

Contents

List of Contributors	xi
Preface	xiii
Acknowledgments	xv

HISTORY AND THEORY

1. History of Developmental Psychology: Socialization and Personality Development through the Life Span

Robert J. Havighurst

I. Introduction	4
II. Emerging Life-Span Views of Personality Development in the Twentieth Century	6
III. Conditions under Which a Life-Span Interest Develops	12
IV. Research Programs and Methods in Relation to Life-Span Study of Personality Development	13
V. Textbook Treatments of Personality Development and Socialization	20
VI. Literary Sources of Life-Span Developmental Information	21
VII. Requirements for a Life-Span Theory of Personality Development	23

2. Socialization and Personality throughout the Life Span: An Examination of Contemporary Psychological Approaches

William R. Loft

I. Introduction	26
II. Dimensions of Psychological Models of Development	27
III. Representative Examples of Contemporary Psychological Approaches	40
IV. Recommendations for Future Model Development	47

3. Sociological Perspectives on the Life Cycle

Bernice L. Neugarten and Nancy Datan

I. Introduction	53
II. Sociological Concepts	54
III. Three Dimensions of Time	56
IV. Social Time and the Age Status Structure	59
V. Age Norms as a System of Social Control	61
VI. Age Stratification	62
VII. The Changing Rhythm of the Life Cycle	64
VIII. Toward a Social Psychology of the Life Cycle	68

4. Life-Span Environmental Psychology: Methodological Issues

Samuel Z. Klausner

I. The Two Problems	72
II. On Propositions Linking Physical and Psychological Variables: A Problem in Explanation	73
III. Criteria of Relevance: A Problem in Fact Selection	77
IV. Illustrative Problems for Life-Span Environmental Psychology	89
V. Conclusion and Policy Implications	93

PERSONALITY VARIABLES

5. Developmental Dimensions of Personality: A Life-Span Formulation

Norman Livson

I. Introduction	98
II. Some Necessary Tactical Assumptions for the Life-Span Study of Personality Development	98
III. Continuity as Axiomatic for the Life-Span Study of Personality Development	114

6. Socialization and Sex-Role Development

Walter Emmerich

I. Introduction	124
II. Theories of Socialization	126
III. From Theory to Research	128
IV. Sex-Role Identity	134
V. Development of Sex-Role Norms	139
VI. Implications for a Life-Span Framework	143

7. Creativity and Cognitive Style: A Life-Span Perspective

Nathan Kogan

I. Introduction	146
II. Creativity	146
III. Cognitive Styles	160

8. Continuities in Childhood and Adult Moral Development Revisited

Lawrence Kohlberg

I. Introduction	180
II. Concepts of Stage in Relation to Adulthood	180
III. Cognitive Stage Development in Adulthood	183
IV. The Existence of Adulthood Moral States—Background Considerations	186
V. The Existence of Adult Moral Stages—The Kohlberg and Kramer Conclusions	188
VI. Adult Experiences Involved in Moral Stage Development	193
VII. Relations between Cognitive-Structural Moral Stages and Erikson's Ego Stages	197
VIII. Notes Toward a Seventh Stage	201

SOCIAL PROCESSES

9. Intergenerational Relations and Continuities in Socialization

Vern L. Bengtson and K. Dean Black

I. Introduction	208
II. Dimensions of Generational Analysis: Time, Social Structure, and Socialization	210
III. The Negotiation of Difference and Similarity	222
IV. Conclusion: Generational Relations and Cultural Change	231

10. A Problem in Life-Span Development: The Interactional Analysis of Family Attachments

Willard W. Hartup and Jacques Lempers

I. Attachment and the Personological Perspective	235
II. Toward Dyadic Conceptions of Attachment	238
III. Toward Interactional Conceptions of Attachment	242
IV. Final Comment	250

11. Social-Learning Theory as a Framework for the Study of Adult Personality Development

Inge M. Ahammer

I. Introduction: Why Social-Learning Theory?	253
II. Principles of Social-Learning Theory as Related to Life-Span Development	257
III. Marriage	262
IV. Parenthood	274
V. Retrospect	283

12. Person-Perception Research and the Perception of Life-Span Development

Anne H. Nardi

I. Introduction	285
II. The Process of Person Perception	286
III. Perception of Age: Stereotypes	289
IV. Perceptions of Aging: Diversity of Variables	290
V. Perception of Age-Functional Behavior	293
VI. Perception of Change: Implications for Developmental Research	298
VII. Conclusion	301

PROGRAMMATIC INTERVENTION

13. Human Development over the Life Span through Education

James E. Birren and Diana S. Woodruff

I. Introduction	306
II. Rationale for Life-Span Education	308
III. Implications for Educational Action	318
IV. Summary and Conclusions	334

14. Some Ecological Implications for the Organization of Human Intervention throughout the Life Span

Dwight Harshbarger

I. Introduction	340
II. Organized Intervention: Has It Made Any Difference?	341
III. The Human Service Organization	347
IV. Some Ecological Considerations for Intervention at the Community Level	350
V. The Ecological Assessment of Community Intervention: A Life-Span Model	358
VI. Designing Intervention: The Future as Reminiscence or Rebirth?	360
VII. Strategies for Organizational Change in the Human Services	360
VIII. Concluding Comments	362

Epilogue: On Life-Span Developmental Research Paradigms: Retrospects and Prospects

Paul B. Baltes and K. Warner Schaie

I. Introduction	366
II. Developmental Research Paradigms	370
III. Prototypical Questions of Life-Span Research on Development	377
IV. Personality Variables	382
V. Social Processes	387
VI. Conclusions	393

References	397
------------	-----

Author Index	433
Subject Index	444