

Contents

|                       |      |
|-----------------------|------|
| LIST OF CONTRIBUTORS  | vii  |
| PREFACE               | ix   |
| CONTENTS OF VOLUME II | xiii |

chapter 1: Infant Visual Perception: Methods of Study
DAPHNE MAURER

|                               |    |
|-------------------------------|----|
| I. Introduction               | 1  |
| II. Anatomy                   | 2  |
| III. The Electroretinogram    | 10 |
| IV. Visually Evoked Potential | 22 |
| V. Electrooculography         | 36 |
| VI. Optokinetic Nystagmus     | 41 |
| VII. Corneal Reflection       | 48 |
| VIII. Conclusion              | 64 |
| References                    | 65 |

chapter 2: A Neuronal Activity Model for Infant
Visual Attention

BERNARD Z. KARMEL AND EILEEN B. MAISEL

|   |    |
|---|----|
| I. Behavioral Preferences   | 78 |
| II. Visual System Maturation Related to PatternProcessing at the Neurological Level | 93 |

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| III. Measurement of Gross Electrical Phenomena Assumed to Correlate with Activity in Pools of Neurons  | 98  |
| IV. Cortically Evoked Potentials   | 100 |
| V. Infant Pattern-Dependent VEPs   | 104 |
| VI. General Implications and Conclusions   | 120 |
| VII. Summary   | 124 |
| References   | 125 |
| chapter 3: Pattern Perception in Early Infancy   |     |
| PHILIP SALAPATEK   |     |
| I. Introduction  | 133 |
| II. Theories of Perceptual Learning and Development  | 134 |
| III. Lines of Evidence Particularly Relevant to Innate Organization, Focal Processing, and Oculomotor Involvement in Perceptual Learning and Development | 144 |
| IV. Infant Research Relevant to the Issues Raised  | 176 |
| V. Early Perceptual Development Reconsidered   | 226 |
| VI. Two versus Three Dimensions, Figure versus Object, and Static versus Dynamic Cues: The Limitations of This Chapter                                   | 233 |
| References   | 234 |
| chapter 4: Early Visual Selectivity  |     |
| ROBERT L. FANTZ, JOSEPH F. FAGAN, III,AND SIMÓN B. MIRANDA   |     |
| I. Introduction  | 249 |
| II. Method and Concepts  | 250 |
| III. Form Variations   | 258 |
| IV. Quantitative Pattern Variations  | 285 |
| V. Other Stimulus Variations   | 298 |
| VI. Variations in Subject Samples  | 305 |
| VII. Discussion and Theory   | 327 |
| References   | 341 |
| chapter 5: Infant Visual Memory  |     |
| LESLIE B. COHEN AND ERIC R. GELBER   |     |
| I. Introduction  | 347 |
| II. Qualitative Changes in Memory Development  | 349 |
| III. Behaviors Implying Infant Memory  | 353 |
| IV. Paired-Comparison versus Habituation Paradigms   | 357 |
| V. Parameters Affecting Infant Recognition   | 365 |
| VI. Models of Infant Habituation and Memory  | 390 |
| VII. Summary and Conclusions   | 398 |
| References   | 399 |
| AUTHOR INDEX   | 405 |
| SUBJECT INDEX  | 415 |