

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	v
TABLE OF CONTENTS	vii
INTRODUCTION Canada's "Second History": The Fiction of Jewish
Canadian Women Writers	1
1. Introduction: Facing the Past and the Future as a Woman and an Exile.....	1
2. The Failure of Multiculturalism.....	9
3. Multiculturalism and Transnationalism	15
4. Canada and a "Second History"	20
5. Jewish Chronotopes and Messianic Time	21
6. Jewish and Canadian Frontiers, Histories, and Women.....	25
7. Other Interruptions of Linearity: Ghosts, Untold Stories, and Adoptions ..	33
8. Writing "Womanness"	37
PART I: Anne Michaels	41
CHAPTER 1 Space-Time in Anne Michaels's Fugitive Pieces	43
1. Introduction: Creation and Destruction.....	43
2. Chronotopes, Diaspora, and the Renegotiation of the Past	50
3. Burial and Retrieval	62
4. Pairings and Missing Information.....	69
5. Ghostly Absences and Double Exposures	77
6. Surrogates and Extended Families.....	91
7. "Father's Time, Mother's Species": Jewish Toronto as Experienced by Women	101
8. Conclusion: " To remain with the dead is to abandon them ": Honouring the Past to Create a Future in Fugitive Pieces	111
PART II: Lilian Nattel and Nancy Richler.....	123
PART II INTRODUCTION Making Choices: Eastern European Exodus and Revolution	125
CHAPTER 2 Seamstresses, Prostitutes, and Mothers: London's East End as a Jewish Chronotope in Lilian Nattel's The Singing Fire.....	139
1. The East End as a Jewish Chronotope	139
2. Jewish Frontiers, History, and Diaspora	141
3. Jewish Multiplicity and the Female Voice in The Singing Fire	144
4. The History of Jewish London	146
5. The Tailoring Trade	150
6. Women in the East End.....	155
7. Holidays, the Marketplace, and Carnival in Jewish London.....	158
8. Overthrowing History: Bakhtin, Benjamin, and Foucault	164
9. Women's Bodies, Adoptions, and Families	170
10. Adopting Narratives.....	185
11. Ghostly Visitations as Sources of Power	197
12. Conclusion: Uncovering Jewish Women's Stories in The Singing Fire . 203

CHAPTER 3 A Tale of Loss and Absence in Russia's Frozen Land of Exile: Motherhood, Utopia, and Jewish Revolution in Nancy
Richler's Your Mouth is Lovely	207
1. Introduction: Finding a Voice in the Siberian Katorga	207
2. Jewish Revolution	211
3. Miriam's Memoirs: Love, Death, and Absence in the Time of Revolution	219
4. Revisioned Narratives and Spectral Hauntings	225
5. Your Mouth is Lovely Summary: Setting the Story Free	229
6. The Story of the Diaspora: Narratives of Home as Jewish Identity	232
7. Jewish Diaspora and Canadian Multiculturalism	241
PART II CONCLUSION Happy and Unhappy Endings in Lilian Nattel's The Singing Fire and Nancy Richler's Your Mouth is Lovely	247
PART III: Chava Rosenfarb	255
CHAPTER 4 From the Shtetl to the Ghetto: Life, Love, and Liberty in Chava Rosenfarb's Bociany and Of Lodz and Love	257
1. Introduction to Bociany and Of Lodz and Love	257
2. The Shtetl as a Jewish Chronotope in Bociany	260
3. Rosenfarb's Shtetl as Counter-Memory and a Jewish Frontier	262
4. Justice and the Evolving Jewish Identity	269
5. The Industrial City in Of Lodz and Love	278
6. The Multiplicity of Jewish History	283
7. A Woman's Story in a Time of Political Tumult	285
8. The Failure to Overthrow History	288
9. Conclusion: A Kaddish to Confront the Abyss	292
CHAPTER 5 Planting Seeds of Memory with Chava Rosenfarb's The Tree of Life: A Novel About Life in the Lodz Ghetto	295
1. Introduction: Suspending Judgement	295
2. The Lodz Ghetto as a Jewish Chronotope	298
3. Tree of Life as Historiographic Metafiction	300
4. Narrative Techniques in Tree of Life	308
5. Power Dynamics in the Ghetto	317
6. "Us" vs. "Them"	321
7. Art and Cultural Life in the Lodz Ghetto	331
8. The Concept of Justice in Times of Suspended Morality	335
9. Gender in the Ghetto	343
10. The Fight for Survival	350
11. Conclusion: Tree of Life as a Counter-Memorial	357
CHAPTER 6 Exiled in Montreal: The Canadian City as Jewish Chronotope in the Short Fiction of Chava Rosenfarb and Régine Robin's The Wanderer	363
1. Introduction: Chava Rosenfarb and Régine Robin's Exilic Experiences of Montreal	363
2. "No chronology, no logic, no lodging.": Wandering Out of Time	367
3. "Across Time. Space full of holes": Jewish Multiplicity in the Chronotope	372

4. "In exile in your own language": Being "French" French in Quebec	374
5. New Futures for Quebec	378
6. Montreal as a Jewish Chronotope.....	379
7. Liberation and Exile in "Edgia's Revenge"	386
8. Ordinary Montreal in "A Friday in the Life of Sarah Zonabend" and "François".....	394
9. Conclusion: Narratives as Home in Survivors and The Wanderer	398
PART III CONCLUSION Chava Rosenfarb as Jewish Canadian Writer	403
CONCLUSION Dialogism in the Fiction of Jewish Canadian Women Writers.....	413
1. The Dialogics of Remembering.....	413
2. Project Summary.....	414
3. Chronotopic Women's Writing: Continuing the Tradition in Jewish Juvenile and Young Adult Fiction.....	419
WORKS CITED.....	425