

Contents

Preface	7
Abbreviations and Symbols	9
I. Introduction
1. Sorbian and Northwest Slavic	15
2. Upper and Lower Sorbian	17
3. The geographical delimitation of Sorbian	17
4. The chronological delimitation of Sorbian	20
5. Previous research on the historical phonology of Sorbian	21
6. Sources for the study of the historical phonology of Sorbian	22
II. From Common Slavic to Old Sorbian
7. The phonological system of Late Common Slavic	27
8. Palatalization processes	29
9. The rise of palatalized consonants before front vowels	33
10. The labialization of front vowels	34
11. Restructuring the vowel systems	38
III. Phonological developments in Old Sorbian
12. The assimilation of r in the clusters pr tr kr	41
13. The despirantization of x in LSo	44
14. The metathesis of liquids	45
15. Changes in prosodic structure	48
16. The development of prothetic glides	51
17. Denasalization	54
18. Compensatory lengthening	57
19. The treatment of the jers	59
20. The groups CuSC and CiSC	68
21. The lenition of ʒ'	79
22. The development of the clusters s'č' and ž'ž'	80
23. The raising of ě in USo	81
24. The labialization of e after palatalized consonants	84
25. Restructuring the prosodic system	87
26. The merger of ē and ě and the rise of ó in USo	89
27. Epenthetic j	90

IV. From Old Sorbian to Upper and Lower Sorbian

28. The phonological systems of Upper and Lower Sorbian at the end of the 12th century	93
29. The spirantization of g in USo	94
30. The assibilation of t' and d'	97
31. The palatalization of velars	99
32. The delabialization of o	101
33. The rise of ó in LSo	103
34. The assibilation of r and r'	105
35. The simplification of the cluster stř	109
36. The labialization of e after nonpalatalized consonants	110
37. The depalatalization of c' s' z'	112
38. The depalatalization of č' š' ž' in LSo	113
39. The merger of č and c in LSo	115
40. The alignment of ř and ř'	116
41. The elimination of ć and ź	118
42. The despirantization of initial x in USo	122
43. The labialization of t	124
44. The labialization of y after labials	127
45. The loss of h and w	129
46. The change w' > j	133
47. The change e > a in LSo	134
48. The raising of ě in LSo	135
49. The lowering of i	137
50. The change a > e in USo	138

V. Phonological changes after the seventeenth century and miscellaneous developments

51. The monophthongization of ó in USo	141
52. The monophthongization of ó in LSo	142
53. Miscellaneous developments	143
54. The contemporary phonological systems of Sorbian dialects	152
55. In place of a summary: Sorbian, Northwest Slavic, and German	155

Appendix I: Dialects and dialect areas	159
--------------------------------------------------	-----

Appendix II: Texts	161
------------------------------	-----

Index of Sorbian words and word forms	163
-------------------------------------------------	-----

Index of names	171
--------------------------	-----

Bilingual place-name index	173
--------------------------------------	-----