

Contents

Foreword
Matilda White Riley	vii
Acknowledgments	xiv
1. Introduction: An Overview of Research on Aging, Health, and Behavior Marcia G. Ory, Ronald Peter Abeles, and Paula Darby Lipman	1
Part I. Self-, Informal, and Formal Health Care Behaviors
2. Health-Related Behavior: Concepts and Methods Kathryn Dean	27
3. Informal and Formal Health Care Systems Serving Older Persons Gordon H. DeFries and Alison Woomert	57
4. The Behavior System of Dependency in the Elderly: Interaction with the Social Environment Margret M. Baltes and Hans-Werner Wahl	83
Part II. Biopsychosocial Mechanisms Linking Health and Behavior
5. Vigilant Coping and Health Behavior Howard Leventhal, Elaine A. Leventhal, and Pamela M. Schaefer	109

6. Coping with Chronic Illness and Disability H. Asuman Kiyak and Soo Borson	141
7. Sense of Control, Aging, and Health Judith Rodin and Christine Timko	174
8. Aging, Stress, and Illness: Psychobiological Linkages Thomas M. Vogt	207
Part III. Social and Behavioral Interventions
9. Disease Prevention and Health Promotion with Older Adults William Rakowski	239
10. Intervening in Social Systems to Promote Health Lennart Levi	276
Part IV. Implications for Public Policy
11. Social Characteristics, Social Structure, and Health in the Aging Population Carroll L. Estes and Thomas G. Rundall	299
12. Forecasting Health and Functioning in Aging Societies: Implications for Health Care and Staffing Needs Kenneth G. Manton and Richard Suzman	327
Index	358
About the Authors	371