

Contents

List of Contributors
Preface

xiii
xv

Part I Introduction

1. A Perspective on Interpersonal Attraction

TED L. HUSTON

I. Introduction and Overview	3
II. Problems with Conceptualizations of Attraction	7
III. Attraction as a Multifaceted Attitude	11
IV. The Measurement of Attraction	14
V. Social Relationships and Attraction	15
VI. The Reward Hypothesis	20
VII. Concluding Comments	25
REFERENCES	25

Part II The Contexts of Attraction

2. A Cognitive-Developmental Approach to Interpersonal Attraction

THOMAS LICKONA

I. Introduction	31
II. The Cognitive-Developmental Conception of Social Motivation	34
III. Developmental Changes in Attachment in Early Childhood	35
IV. Cognitive-Structural Levels of Moral Development and Interpersonal Attraction	38
V. The Development of Formal Logical Operations	47
VI. The Development of Inference and Understanding of Social-Psychological Causality	51
VII. Levels of Ego Development as a Framework for the Study of Attraction	55
VIII. Conclusion	57
REFERENCES	57

3. The Social Context of Interpersonal Attraction

ALAN C. KERCKHOFF

I. Introduction	61
II. The Field of Desirables	64
III. The Field of Availables	66
IV. Normative Adherence	68
V. Normative Definition	69
VI. Social Structure, Role Definition, and Interpersonal Attraction	70
VII. Conclusion	75
REFERENCES	76

4. Cross-Cultural Perspective on Attraction

PAUL C. ROSENBLATT

I. Introduction	79
II. Attraction and Freedom of Choice of Spouse	81
III. Cultural Context of Attraction	83
IV. Interaction in the Building of Attraction	84
V. Personal Characteristics and Attraction	87
VI. Ceremonies and Ritual in Commitment Building	90
VII. Long-Term Development of a Relationship	91
VIII. Conclusion	93
REFERENCES	94

Part III Conceptual Frameworks

5. *A Three-Level Approach to Attraction:
Toward an Understanding of Pair Relatedness*

GEORGE LEVINGER

I. Introduction	100
II. Levels of Human Relatedness	101
III. Behavioral Indices of Relatedness	111
IV. The Context of Interpersonal Reinforcement	116
V. Summary	118
REFERENCES	119

6. *The Communication of Interpersonal Attitudes:
An Ecological Approach*

IRWIN ALTMAN

I. Introduction	121
II. An Ecological Orientation to Interpersonal Relationships	124

III.	A Conceptual Framework of Interpersonal Attraction	125
IV.	Behavioral Indicators of Social Penetration	130
V.	Summary	138
	REFERENCES	138
7.	A Reinforcement-Affect Model of Attraction
	GERALD L. CLORE AND DONN BYRNE
I.	A Description of the Model	143
II.	A Multilevel Conceptualization of Theory Construction and Theory Testing	153
	REFERENCES	165
8.	The Role of Reward in the Formation of Positive Interpersonal Attitudes
	ALBERT J. LOTT AND BERNICE E. LOTT
I.	Introduction	171
II.	The Meaning of Reward	173
III.	Sources of Reward	174
IV.	Interpersonal Attraction and the Reward Hypothesis	187
	REFERENCES	189
9.	Attributions, Liking, and Power
	JAMES T. TEDESCHI
I.	Introduction	193
II.	Some Unexplained Findings	194
III.	The Nature of Attraction	197
IV.	Attraction as a Power Resource	204
V.	Interpretations of the Evidence	207
VI.	Some Final Thoughts	211
	REFERENCES	212
10.	A Symbolic Interactionist Approach to Attraction
	GEORGE J. McCALL
I.	Reconceptualizing Interpersonal Attraction	217
II.	The Problem of Interpersonal Attraction	219
III.	Determinants of Alter's Character	221
IV.	Determinants of Ego's Attachment to Alter's Character	225
V.	Conclusions	228
	REFERENCES	229

Part IV *Antecedents of Attraction:
Affective Feedback, Attitudes, and Situational Factors*

11. Affective Reactions to Appraisal from Others

DAVID R. METTEE AND ELLIOT ARONSON

I. Introduction	236
II. Personal Evaluations Taken of Face Value	237
III. The Evaluation Incongruency Pseudoqualification	244
IV. The Internal States Qualifier	252
V. Characteristics of the Evaluator	258
VI. The Perceived Intent of the Evaluator: Ingratiation and Other Ulterior Motives	261
VII. The Gain-Loss Model	265
VIII. Conclusions	279
REFERENCES	280

12. Attitude Similarity and Attraction

WILLIAM GRIFFITT

I. Introduction	285
II. Correlational Research on Attitude Similarity and Attraction	286
III. Experimental Research on Attitude Similarity and Attraction	286
IV. A Similarity-Attraction Research Paradigm	288
V. Similarity-Attraction Theories	300
REFERENCES	304

13. Social Comparison and Selective Affiliation

LADD WHEELER

I. Introduction	309
II. Opinion Comparison and Affiliation	310
III. Emotional Comparison and Affiliation	312
IV. Ability Comparison and Affiliation	318
V. Personality Comparison and Affiliation	320
VI. Individual Differences in Social Comparison	324
VII. Conclusions	326
REFERENCES	328

14. Social Psychology of Justice and Interpersonal Attraction

MELVIN LERNER

I. Introduction: Some Theoretical Considerations	331
II. Attraction and the Perception of Justice	333

III. Reactions to Injustice: The Effects on Attraction	340
IV. Summary	348
REFERENCES	349

Part V Romantic Attraction

15. A Little Bit about Love

ELLEN BERSCHIED AND ELAINE WALSTER

I. The Elusive Nature of Love	356
II. Liking and Loving	357
III. A Tentative Theory of Passionate Love	360
IV. Generating Physiological Arousal: The First Step in Generating Passionate Love	363
V. The Second Step in Generating Passionate Love: Labeling	371
VI. Summary	378
REFERENCES	379

16. From Liking to Loving: Patterns of Attraction in Dating Relationships

ZICK RUBIN

I. Introduction	383
II. Conceptual Beginnings	384
III. Measuring Liking and Loving	387
IV. Loving and Looking	391
V. Similar Attitudes and Different Religions	394
VI. Love, Liking, and Mate Selection	396
VII. Conclusion	400
REFERENCES	400

Author Index	403
Subject Index	414