

Table of Contents

Introduction Dietmar Böhnke, Stefani Brusberg-Kiermeier, Peter Drexler	7
Visual Culture	13
Victorian Women Artists: Their Quest for Independence and Professional Artistic Training Anna Havemann	15
St George's Hall in Liverpool: Victorian Architecture and the Meanings of Public Space Doris Teske	41
Labour and Gender: Ford Madox Brown's Work and Victorian Navvy Stories Peter Drexler	67
Gender and Emotions	103
“Always Look at the Bright Side of Things”, or: How to Be Happy in Mid-Victorian Britain Jana Gohrisch	105
Drudges and Lassies: Working-Class Women in Nineteenth-Century Britain – Exploitation, Aestheticisation, Eroticisation Ingrid von Rosenberg	129
Transgressive Melodrama: The ‘Sensational’ 1860s and Their After-Effects Merle Tönnies	157

Magnetic Minds: The Victorian Mesmeric Craze Betsy van Schlun	181
Journalism, Leisure and Popular Culture	211
Journalism and Literature in the Victorian Period: The Cases of Charles Dickens and William Makepeace Thackeray Jürgen Enkemann	213
The British Music Hall – Between Politics and Entertainment Andrea Kinsky-Ehritt	243
“A World of Topsy-Turvydom” – Popular Culture, Victorian Theatre, and Gilbert and Sullivan Opera Stefani Brusberg-Kiermeier	269
Values Encaged: The Victorian Zoo Stefan Welz	289
Rewritings and Revisions	313
Neo-Victorianism: The Victorian Age in Postmodern British Fiction and Film Dietmar Böhnke	315
Rewriting A Victorian Master Narrative: Emma Tennant’s Two Women of London: Ms Jekyll and Mrs Hyde (1989) Alexandra Lembert	341
The 1900 House : Squeezing Late-Victorian Life onto the Small Screen Rainer Emig	363
Contributors	385