

Contents

1	Introduction	I
2	Friends of the modern state
	Collectivism and the growth of the modern state	7
	Liberalism – L. T. Hobhouse, J. A. Hobson	17
	Socialism – H. M. Hyndman, Sidney and Beatrice Webb, Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells	26
	The state at home and abroad	45
3	Pleas for liberty
	The individualist resistance to the modern state – Herbert Spencer, Auberon Herbert, Wordsworth Donisthorpe	50
	Charity and the struggle for survival – Bernard Bosanquet	60
	Popular anti-statism – Stephen Reynolds	63
	Conservatism and anti-socialism – W. H. Mallock	65
4	Neither state nor individual: the defence of communal and group politics
	Communal and group politics – conservatives and others	69
	Communism and anarchism – Peter Kropotkin and William Morris	71
	The reform of society – the assimilation of dissent	79
	Distributism – G. K. Chesterton and Hilaire Belloc	84
	Syndicalism	91
	Political pluralism – F. W. Maitland, J. N. Figgis, Harold Laski	94
	Guild socialism – S. G. Hobson, G. D. H. Cole	98
5	The pale of the constitution: the idea of citizenship
	Democrats and élitists	105
	Citizens, people and women	111
	Nation, class and the style of politics	122

6	Accommodations to the modern state: political ideas in the second quarter of the twentieth century
	The presence of the modern state	126
	Economists and other experts	134
	Power and class – R. H. Tawney and George Orwell	141
	Culture and politics – T. S. Eliot, D. H. Lawrence, Percy Wyndham Lewis, Herbert Read	152
	The foreign dimension: fascism and communism	158
	Pessimism, caution and the possibilities of democracy	166
7	Arrivals and departures: political ideas in the third quarter of the twentieth century
	Caution and consensus	172
	The beginning of ideology: socialism – John Strachey, C. A. R. Crosland, Richard Titmuss, E. P. Thompson, Raymond Williams	177
	The beginning of ideology: libertarianism, conservatism and anarchism – Enoch Powell, Michael Oakeshott, F. A. Hayek, Colin Ward	190
	New pluralisms	205
	The move to the academy, Britain in the world, the continuation of political argument	213
	Bibliography	219
	Index	239