

Table of Contents

Foreword by Jane Goodall	xi
Introduction	1
Two Stories: Transcendence and Reduction	4
A Social Scientific Approach	6
Organization of the Book	8
Language and Style	12
Chapter 1
Psychology's Use of Animals:
Current Practices and Attitudes	15
Introduction	15
The Field of Psychology	15
Animal-Based Research in Psychology	19
Numbers: Of Animals Used and of Users	19
Species Used	26
Nature and Scope of Use	26
Suffering Involved	31
Trends in Invasiveness	40
Psychologists' Attitudes Toward Laboratory Animals	41
Psychology and the Animal Rights Movement	48
Psychologists' Sound-Bites and Sound Advice	55
Chapter 2
Construction of a Science	57
Experimentalism	61

Construction of the Laboratory	62
Construction of the Laboratory Animal	63
Critique of Experimentalism	68
Critique of the Laboratory Animal	71
Construction or Deconstruction: Positivism or Mystification?	72
Conclusion	84

Chapter 3

Animals as Models	85
Concepts of Models	88
Psychology's Use of Animal Models	96
Claims and Actualities	97
Degraded Heuristic	100
Rhetorical Device	102
Ethical and Attitudinal Implications	108

Chapter 4

Selected Animal Models	111
1. Presentation	111
Eating Disorders	113
Bulimia Nervosa	122
Animal Models of Bulimia: Sham Feeding	125
Animal Models of Bulimia: Stress-Induced Eating	132
An Animal Model of Anorexia Nervosa:
Activity-Stress	140
2. Evaluation	143
The Laboratory-Based Animal Model Strategy:
Limits and Biases	146
Bias toward Physiological Explanation and Analysis	152
Preoccupation with Technology	161
Treatment as Technological Fix	167
Discursis on Therapy	168

Therapies and Animal Research	171
Evaluation of Therapy of the Eating Disorders	178
Pharmacological Therapy and Animal Research	182
Survey of Clinicians Specializing in Eating Disorder Treatment	189
Citation Analyses of Selected Animal Model Researchers' Studies	193
Level of Invasiveness of Selected Animal Model Researchers' Studies	203
Conclusion	207

Chapter 5

Ethical Issues in Psychology's

Use of Animals 213

Spectrum of Ethical Positions 215

Similar or Different: An Organizing Concept 217

Individual-Based Philosophy: Regan's Case

for Animal Rights 224

Application to Psychological Research 227

Nonindividual-Based Philosophy 231

Relation-based Ethics 232

Community-Based Ethics 237

Singer's Utilitarianism 241

Application to Psychological Research 242

Conclusion 246

Chapter 6

Psychology's Ethics: The Official Positions . 247

The Humane Ethic 249

Permissive Utilitarianism 259

Assessment of Costs 263

Measurement of Benefits 269

Historical Considerations 276

Conclusion 280

Epilogue	285
Summary	287
Recommendation	292
References	293
Index	321