

Contents

List of contributors	vii
Introduction	1
Acknowledgments	.3
PART A. Motivation and perception
EDITORIAL: 1	5
1 Hierarchical organisation: a candidate principle for ethology RICHARD DAWKINS	7
2 Form and function in the temporal organisation of behaviour D. J. MCFARLAND	55
3 Attentional processes and animal behaviour R. J. ANDREW	95
4 Dynamic boundaries of patterned behaviour: interaction and self-organization JOHN C. FENTRESS	135
5 Sound production and perception in birds as related to the general principles of pattern perception W. H. THORPE AND J. HALL-CRAGGS	171
EDITORIAL: 2	191
PART B. Function and evolution
EDITORIAL: 3	193
6 Evolutionary rules and primate societies T. H. CLUTTON-BROCK AND P. H. HARVEY	195
7 Social organization, communication and graded signals: the chimpanzee and the gorilla PETER MARLER	239
8 Kin selection in lions and evolution B. C. R. BERTRAM	281
9 The social function of intellect N. K. HUMPHREY	303
EDITORIAL: 4	319

CONTENTS

PART C. Development

	EDITORIAL: 5	323
10	The place of genetics in the study of behaviour AUBREY MANNING	327
11	Stages in the early behavioural development of altricial young of selected species of non-primate mammals JAY S. ROSENBLATT	345
12	The study of animal play M. J. A. SIMPSON	385
13	Rules and reciprocity in behavioural development P. P. G. BATESON	401
	EDITORIAL: 6	423

PART D. Human social relationships

	EDITORIAL: 7	425
14	Growing points in human ethology: another link between ethology and the social sciences? N. G. BLURTON JONES	427
15	Towards understanding relationships: dynamic stability R. A. HINDE AND JOAN STEVENSON-HINDE	451
16	How far do early differences in mother-child relations affect later development? JUDY DUNN	481
17	Does ethology throw any light on human behaviour? PETER B. MEDAWAR	497
18	Ethology in a changing world N. TINBERGEN	507
	EDITORIAL: 8	529
	Conclusion - on asking the right questions	533
	Index	537