

Contents

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	ix
INTRODUCTION	3
1 Critical Theory and Social Incorporation	6
The Reconstructed Dialectic
Two-dimensional and One-dimensional Society
Critical Theory and the English Working Class
2 Legitimacy and Social Protest in Preindustrial England, 1750-1790	29
Subsystem of Instrumental Action
Subsystem of Symbolic Interaction
The Norm of Reciprocity
Social Protest
3 The Crisis of Power and Authority, 1790-1832	69
Instrumental Action: Changes in Economic and Productive Activity
Symbolic Interaction: The Struggle Over Ideological Alternatives
Social Protest
Summary
4 Legitimation and the Suppression of Imagination	137
System of Instrumental Action
System of Symbolic Interaction
Self-help and the Transmutation of Working-Class Values and Institutions
The Shift from Political to Exchange Forms of Domination
The Labor Aristocracy
The Norm of Reciprocity
Social Protest

5	The Social Basis of Chartism	195
	Nonconformity
	The Irish
	Occupational Communities
6	Competing Explanations of the Incorporation of the English Working Class	231
	The Marxian Explanation
	The Marxian Dialectic
	Critique of the Marxian Dialectic
	The Reconstructed Dialectic
7	One-Dimensionality in Contemporary Society	266
	One-dimensionality
	Implications for the Contemporary Situation
	Conclusion
	BIBLIOGRAPHY	291
	INDEX	307