

CONTENTS

1. Introduction 1

PART I

CULTURE AND THE POINT OF LIFE

2. The Foundations of Identity 13
3. Dividing Against Oneself 20
4. The Lure of False Solutions 29
5. What is Hate? 35
6. 'Evil be Thou my Good' 44
7. Perversion, Confession, and the Right of Others to Live 54

PART II

THE PROBLEM OF HATE IN CULTURE

A. Ian Fleming's Goldfinger

8. Unconscious Meaning in the 'Spy' Story 67
9. The Taboo on Weakness 73
10. Primitive Phantasy 75
11. Pecunia Non Olet 81
12. Homosexuality and Curiosity 88
13. Variations on the Primal Scene 94
14. The Need to Hate 99
15. The Prose of Paranoid Ritual 103
16. Compulsive Sadism in Action 109
17. Contempt for Woman is Contempt for Being Human 114
18. The Commander at 'Goldeneye' 123

19. The Socially Acceptable Psychopath	130
20. Swallowing the Gilded Faeces	138
B. Hate in High Places
21. The Charming Hate in Iris Murdoch	147
C. The Ethos of the Avant-garde
22. A Little Bit of Shit in China: The Reduction of Symbolism	161
D. Hate Through the Machine
23. Harold Pinter's Basement	177
24. The Manic and Voracious Camera: Hate in Film	191
E. The 'Amazing Reversal' in Culture at Large
25. Schizoid Inversion in Culture at Large	201

PART III

CONCLUSIONS: THE NEED TO BE HUMAN

26. The Redemption of Creativity	237
27. The Protection of Symbolism	245
28. The Need for a Revival of Conscience	254
Bibliography	263
Index	265