

Contents

Contributors	vii
Preface	ix
Part I: Introduction
Allan R. Buss The Emerging Field of the Sociology of Psychological Knowledge	1
Part II: Paradigms	25
K. Danziger The Social Origins of Modern Psychology	27
Martin Leightman Gestalt Theory and the Revolt against Positivism	47
Lewis W. Brandt Behaviorism—The Psychological Buttress of Late Capitalism	77
Part III: Individual Differences	101
Franz Samelson Putting Psychology on the Map: Ideology and Intelligence Testing	103
Lita Furby Individualistic Bias in Studies of Locus of Control	169
Part IV: Social Psychology	191
Kenneth J. Gergen The Positivist Image in Social Psychological Theory	193
Howard Gadlin and Susan H. Rubin Interactionism	213
Joachim Israel From Level of Aspiration to Dissonance (Or, What the Middle Class Worries About)	239

Ian Lubek Aggression	259
Ian I. Mitroff Eminent Psychologists and Selenologists	307
Part V: Developmental Psychology	329
Klaus F. Riegel Three Paradigms of Developmental Psychology	331
Susan Buck-Morss Socioeconomic Bias in Piaget's Theory	349
Part VI: Personality	365
Peter Homans The Case of Freud and Carl Rogers	367
Index	395