

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PREFACE	ix
INTRODUCTION	1
A. The Problem of Self-Deception	1
B. Methodological Considerations	5
C. Outline of the Essay	13
CHAPTER ONE
AN ORDINARY LANGUAGE ANALYSIS OF PROBLEMS	21
A. The Deceptive Self-Relation	23
1. Deception: The Initial Analysis	23
a. An Ordinary Language Analysis	24
b. The Moral Dimension	26
c. The Religious Qualification	29
d. Exceptions and Conceptual Complexity	30
e. The Epistemic Deficit	32
f. A Restatement of Problems	35
g. Intention, Error and Deception	35
h. Deception: Conscious and Unconscious Intention	41
i. Review of Intention Issues	44
j. Self-Deception: Unconscious Intentions, Beliefs and Neurosis	45
k. Cognition and Action: A Summing Up	48
l. The "Doing" of Self-Deception and the Wishful Thinker	49
m. The Problem of the Epistemic Object	52
n. Action and Cognition: What the Ordinary Language Analysis Reveals	53
o. From 'Deception' to 'Self': Restating the Problem	55
2. Self : Holistically Conceived Self-Relatedness	56
a. Analysis	56
b. Toward Solution	63
c. The Paradox Restated and Resolved	67
B. Paradox	78
C. Facts	90
D. Conclusion	100
CHAPTER TWO
SELF-DECEPTION: THE PERSPECTIVE OF PHILOSOPHICAL PSYCHOLOGY	119
A. Three Examples of Self-Deception	120

B.	In Search of A Model	137
1.	The Cognitive Model	137
2.	The Translation Model	147
3.	The Action Model	153
4.	Freud and Sartre: Two Other Models	163
a.	The "Different Selves" or "Multiple-Agent" Model . . .	163
b.	Sartre's Dialectical Model	177
c.	Conclusion	194
C.	Synthesis: The Emotional Perception Account	195
CHAPTER THREE
SELF-DECEPTION: THE ETHICAL AND RELIGIOUS PERSPECTIVES		229
A.	The Moral Perspective	233
1.	Self-Deception and Akrasia	233
a.	Akrasia : Voluntary Wrongdoing	234
b.	Self-Deception and Akrasia : Distinct Concepts	237
c.	Self-Deception and Akrasia : Related Concepts	242
d.	Voluntary Wrongdoing and Voluntary Ignorance	246
e.	Conclusion	260
2.	The Ethics of Self-Deception	262
a.	The Moral Issues	264
b.	Analysis of an Example: The Akrates as Self-Deceiver	265
c.	Three Conclusions	274
d.	The "Immorality" of Self-Deception	277
1.	Misconception: Moral Means Prudential	281
2.	Misconception: Self-Deception is Mendacity	292
3.	The Imprudence of Self-Deception	293
e.	Conclusion: The Benefit of the Moral/Prudential Distinction	296
B.	The Religious Perspective	301
1.	Self-Deception and Sin: The Sin of Pride	303
a.	The Religious Perspective on Self-Relatedness and Sin	305
b.	The God-Relation	311
c.	Sin and Pride	314
d.	Pride and Self-Deception	320
e.	Theological Self-Deception: Some Descriptions	329
f.	Conclusion	339
2.	Self-Deception and Sin: Kierkegaard and "Despair is Sin" .	340
CONCLUSION		375
BIBLIOGRAPHY		387
INDEX		403