

Contents

Preface	xi
Acknowledgements and Dedications	xiv

PART I

1: The Mission, Message and Marketing of Social Psychology	1
Making trouble	1
Social psychology as mission	2
Social psychologists as initiates and redeemers	4
Do-gooding	5
Missionary expansionism	5
Social psychology as a product range	7
Consuming social psychology	10
Social psychology's market niche	10
Social psychology's 'unique selling point'	11
What this book seeks to do	13
2: Towards a Critical Social Psychology	15
Human science as a Modernist endeavour	16
The 'march of civilization' tale under question	17
The humaneering form of social psychology	18
The subject of psychology	18
Psychology the discipline	19

vi Contents

Crisis talk	22
Science and scientism	23
New paradigms for old	23
The Foucauldian turn	27
Theo-ry is dead	29
titlehis'ancero humanis andmepts tophieswholbe	33
Science as story-telling	34
All the world's a . . . conversation?	35
Inscribing social psychology	38
Politics by other means?	39
Mission statement?	40

PART II

3: From Personality to Textual Identities	42
What is wrong with a science of the self?	44
The reification of personhood as 'personality'	47
Biologizing personality	48
Damn lies and statistics	49
Situated identity: A turn to ecology	51
A turn to textuality	54
Being-in-the-world	55
Strategy, purpose, directedness: selfhood-in-action	56
We exist in time, and time in us	57
The textuality and tectonics of self	60
Textual identities?	60
'Are you for me or against me?' (the Other)	63
Circumstance	63
Be-coming	65
Standing, footing, location and positioning: their relation to selfhood	65
Knowledging the self	67
4: Between Ourselves	70
Orientation	70
Conventional approaches	71
Triplett and the dynamogenics of reeling	72
Le Bon and the problem with crowds	74
The ideology of the self-contained individual	76
The influence of Le Bon on theories of influence	78
Here comes the Sherif	79

Asch – or ‘size does matter’	80
Stan, Stan the electrodes man	82
‘Collect $15 a day and go to jail’	84
Race relations?	86
Janus	89
Personal relationships	91
From nature and nurture to fields of possibility	94
5: In Social Worlds	98
Growing up social	98
Old chestnuts	99
Dilemmas of development	101
Becoming good, becoming bad	103
Tautology, trivia and truism	106
Social worlds revisited	107
Social worlds recovered and recast	109
PART III
6: From Attitudes to Opinionation as Discourse	111
Unsettling our differences	112
Attitude formation	117
The measurement of attitudes	120
Attitude change	123
Attitudes and behaviour	126
Epilogue: Putting opinionation back ‘between ourselves’	130
7: Science and Common Sense	131
Making sense and making nonsense	131
The emergence of cognitive social psychology	134
The emergence of attribution theory	135
Attribution and applied social psychology	139
Re-attributing attribution	141
Schema theory and social representations theory	142
Disciplined sense and common sense revisioned	144

Understanding as the negotiation of reality	145
From interrogation to reading	146

PART IV

8: From Animosity to Atrocity: Social Psychology Explains Aggression	149
The quest for explanation	150
The interface between lay and expert knowledge	151
Choosing between explanations	152
Explanations are always contingent	153
Explanations are socially constructed	154
Social-psychological explanations of aggression	155
Aggression as a 'natural' response to frustration	155
Environmental 'explanations'	160
Social learning theory	161
Aggression as cultural drama	165
The politics of social psychologists' explanations of aggression	166
A brief critical polytextual reflection on aggression	170
9: Social Emotions	173
Emotion addressed	175
Emotion in mainstream psychology	176
Ordering emotion	177
Emotion as communication	177
Moral concern	178
Emotion, cognition and attribution	179
The social construction of emotion	182
Emotions as ways of being	183
A concrete world of contexts and activities?	185
Emotions as always social	188
Finally, with feeling	191
10: Pomosexualities: Challenging the Missionary Position	192
Sex, gender and sexuality	192
A bit of 'the other'?	193
Sex	195

The consequences of sexual categorization	197
The biological warrant for sex differences	198
Challenging the biological warrant	198

Gender	200
Social learning theory	200
Cognitive-developmental theory	200
Psychoanalytic theory	201
Sexual alchemy	202
‘Measuring’ femininity and masculinity	202
Androgeny	205
Feminist theory	206
The feminist appropriation of psychoanalysis	208
Transdisciplinarity	209
Sexuality	209
A short history of sexology	213
Developmental sexology	217
Eroticization	219
Cross-cultural studies of sexuality	221
Critical readings	222

PART V

11: Methods of Enquiry	225
Experiments	227
Let’s do an experiment	227
Our critique	229
Psychometrics	231
Dissolution	232
A turn to ‘softer’ methods	233
The interrogation interminable	234
The experiment goes marching on!	235
Discipline and publish – don’t discipline and you won’t get published!	236
The ‘good ship’ experimental social psychology sails on	238
Alternative methodologies	238
Asking different questions	239
Social representations research	241
Discourse analytic approaches	243
Where we stand	247
Q methodology	248
Conclusions	253

12: Inconclusions	255
The dialogue	256
Bibliography	273
Index	299