

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	ix
1. External Representations as Learning Tools: An Introduction María del Puy Pérez Echeverría and Nora Scheuer	1
2. From One to Two: Observing One Child's Early Mathematical Steps Nora Scheuer and Anne Sinclair	19
3. Young Children's Developing Ability to Produce Notations in Different Domains — Drawing, Writing, and Numerical Esti Klein, Eva Teubal and Anat Ninio	39
4. Space-Time Representations in Young Children: Thinking Through Gestures in Motion Experiments Ornella Robutti	59
5. Learning Language Through Preschool Science Lucia French and Shira Peterson	77
6. Children's Semantic Representations of a Science Term Rachel Best, Julie Dockrell and Nick Braisby	93
7. Children's Representations in Modelling Scientific Knowledge Construction Andrés Acher and Maria Arcà	109
8. Tables as Cognitive Tools in Primary Education Eduardo Martí	133
9. Does Drawing Contribute to Learning to Write? Children Think it Does Nora Scheuer, Montserrat de La Cruz, Juan Ignacio Pozo and María Faustina Huarte	149
10. The Development of Scientific Inquiry Strategies and Representational Practices in Preadolescents Merce Garcia-Mila, Christopher Andersen and Nubia E. Rojo	167
11. The Impact of Labeling on Adults' and Children's Ability to Use Geometrical Definitions Eva Teubal, Ainat Guberman and Jeanne Albert	187

TABLE OF CONTENTS

12. Graphicacy: University Students' Skills in Translating Information María del Puy Pérez Echeverría, Yolanda Postigo and Ana Pecharromán	209
13. What Does "In the Infinite" Mean?: The Difficulties with Dealing with the Representation of the "Infinite" in a Teaching Sequence on Optics Eduardo F. Mortimer and Christian Buty	225
14. Representing Organic Molecules: The Use of Chemical Languages by University Students Juan Ignacio Pozo and María Gabriela Lorenzo	243
15. Writer Development in the Sciences: Expressing New Meanings in Research Ann Montemayor-Borsinger	267
16. A Reading of the Volume from the Perspective of Symbol-Use Ricardo Nemirovsky	281
17. External Representations Critical to Human Intelligence: Reflections on the Volume Katherine Nelson	297
Final Words	315
Author Index	317