

Contents

Preface	vii
Contributors	xv
Section I. Control Motivation: Theoretical Perspectives
1. Control, Its Loss, and Psychological Reactance	3
JACK W. BREHM
Section II. Models of Perceived Control
2. Perceptions of Control: Determinants and Mechanisms	33
LAUREN B. ALLOY, CAROLINE M. CLEMENTS, and LINDA J. KOENIG
3. Naturally Occurring Perceptions of Control: A Model of Bounded Flexibility	74
SUZANNE C. THOMPSON
4. The Primacy of Control in Causal Thinking and Attributional Style: An Attributional Functionalism Perspective	94
CRAIG A. ANDERSON and WILLIAM E. DEUSER
5. Uncertainty, Mental Models, and Learned Helplessness: An Anatomy of Control Loss	122
MIROSLAW KOFTA
Section III. Effects of Perceived Control on Social Cognition
6. Control Motivation and Attitude Change	157
THANE S. PITTMAN
7. Social Cognition and Power: Some Cognitive Consequences of Social Structure as a Source of Control Deprivation	176
ERIC DÉPRET and SUSAN T. FISKE

8. Individual Differences in Control Motivation and Social Information Processing 203
JERRY M. BURGER
9. Control Motivation and Self-Appraisal 220
MICHAEL J. STRUBE and JOHN H. YOST
10. Depression, Control Motivation, and the Processing of Information about Others 255
GIFFORD WEARY, KERRY L. MARSH, FAITH GLEICHER, and JOHN A. EDWARDS

Section IV. Conclusions and Commentary

11. The Warm Look in Control Motivation and Social Cognition 291
RICHARD M. SORRENTINO

Author Index 323

Subject Index 335