
Contents

List of illustrations	vii
Preface	xi
1 The study of class: class in Britain	1
2 Other class systems, past and present	24
3 Psychological models of social class	46
4 Social relationships	66
5 Work, leisure and lifestyle	93
6 Speech within and between classes	123
7 Intelligence and personality	149
8 Social mobility	176
9 Inter-class attitudes	202
10 Values, sex, crime and religion	230
11 Health, mental health, happiness and self-esteem	260
12 Conclusions, implications and reflections	288
Name index	296
Subject index	303

Illustrations

TABLES

1.1	Unprompted self-ratings of social class (percentages)	4
1.2	Rank order of social class criteria	5
1.3	Typical occupations of each social class	7
1.4	Percentage distribution of occupational classes (Great Britain, 1990)	7
1.5	Income from each fifth of households (1988)	9
1.6	The distribution of wealth (Great Britain, 1989)	10
1.7	Class differences in household expenditure (£ per week)	11
1.8	Consumption of red wine and brown sauce by housing area	13
2.1	Ratios of richest/poorest 20 per cent of households (1989)	34
2.2	Percentage manual/non-manual mobility	36
2.3	Power distance	38
4.1	Where friends come from	68
4.2	Help by friends and relations	69
4.3	Interaction with neighbours (percentages)	71
4.4	Helping neighbours (percentages)	72
4.5	Belonging to clubs (percentages)	74
4.6	Proximity to kin in Woodford and Bethnal Green (percentages)	78
4.7	Marriage	80
4.8	Marriage and intimacy (percentages)	81
4.9	How symmetrical are families? (percentages)	82
4.10	Birth of children	84
4.11	Percentages reporting affiliative satisfaction at work	87
4.12	Homogeneity of different kinds of relationship	90
5.1	Working conditions for British men (1979) (percentages)	94
5.2	Percentage who would choose the same work again	96
5.3	Occupational differences in job satisfaction (USA, 1976) (males/females)	97
5.4	Instrumental orientation to work (percentages)	98
5.5	Percentages seeking work (Great Britain, 1981)	101

5.6	Sport (Great Britain, 1990) (percentages)	104
5.7	Outings (percentages)	110
5.8	How the unemployed spend their time (Great Britain, 1982) (percentages)	110
5.9	Leisure satisfaction (USA, 1976) (percentages)	111
6.1	The generalised accent prestige continuum: mean ratings of 13 accents	134
7.1	Estimated average IQs for different occupational levels	153
7.2	Extraversion and occupation	159
7.3	Physical punishment and other forms of discipline (percentages)	163
7.4	Achievement motivation and social class of schoolboys	164
7.5	Means of dimensions of powerlessness by social class of respondent	166
7.6	Time span for most distant hopes and fears	169
8.1	Education and later social class (Great Britain 1989 and 1990 combined) (percentages)	179
8.2	Class of origin and education (Great Britain 1989 and 1990 combined) (percentages)	183
8.3	Social mobility and IQ scores	186
8.4	Single men and women: origins and destinations	198
9.1	Criteria for class membership: what would you say puts a person in each social class? (percentages)	203
9.2	Percentage of people rating explanations for poverty in their country	205
9.3	Class differences in perception of fairness (Great Britain, 1984) (percentages)	212
9.4	Voting and occupational class (percentages)	219
9.5	Occupational divisions within the salariat 1987	221
9.6	Percentage Labour voting intention by present class and class of origin	222
10.1	Class differences in values	230
10.2	Class differences in work values (percentages)	231
10.3	Class differences in preference for post-material goals (percentages)	234
10.4	Educational differences in authoritarianism	240
10.5a	Early sexual behaviour (percentages)	244
10.5b	Premarital sexual behaviour at 16–20, by later adult status (percentages)	244
10.6	Class differences in enjoyment of marital sex (percentages)	245
10.7	Extramarital intercourse (percentages)	246
10.8	Homosexuality (percentages)	247
10.9	Percentage juvenile delinquency rates, by social class and sex	249
10.10	Delinquency rates by class of biological and adoptive parents (percentages)	251

11.1	Standardised mortality ratios	261
11.2a	Percentage of non-patients and patients admitted to hospital in Aberdeen, 1963-7, by social class	272
11.2b	Percentage of patients and non-patients in each social class in New Haven, Connecticut, 1950	272
11.3	Class differences in strain and worry	273
11.4	Mental hospital admission rates of natives and immigrants in Great Britain, 1971	274
11.5	Social class and happiness in the USA	277
11.6	Social class and happiness in Great Britain	278
11.7	Social class and self-esteem	281
11.8	Self-esteem and education	282

FIGURES

1.1	The three most popular models of the class structure with the survey members' self-placement	13
2.1	Worldwide status scale	35
4.1	Office holders and members of thirty associations distributed among the status groups	76
5.1	Visits to public libraries in the four weeks before interview by highest qualification level, Great Britain, 1987	103
5.2	Number of holidays per year by social class	109
5.3	Recreational trips to the countryside by social class of head of household, 1986	109
5.4	The contents of front rooms	115
6.1	Stratification of the variable tb for adult speakers born in New York	125
6.2	Class distribution of the variable r (as in guard, car, etc.) for New York adults	126
6.3	Norwich (ng): proportion of (ng): $[\eta]$ in speech of five socioeconomic classes in four styles	127
6.4	Clusters of rules	144
7.1	Mean intelligence scores of a number of occupations	150
7.2	Correlations among child's IQ, mother's teaching skills and mother's IQ	155
7.3	Path diagram for causal model of aggression	162
8.1	Initial, intermediate and final social class	178
8.2	IQ and the attainment process	180
8.3	Effect of family background on school leaving age	181
8.4	The attainment process in England and Wales	184
8.5	Path analysis of the effects of achievement motivation and other variables on social mobility	187

8.6	Mean heights for each family position by social class as deviations (inches) from the grand mean	192
9.1	Income estimates for each occupation by middle-class and working-class children	207
10.1	Participation in voluntary work by sex and socioeconomic group, Great Britain, 1987	235
11.1	Income and health: age-standardised health ratios, illness and psychosocial health, in relation to weekly income, demonstrating the effect of £50/week increments in household income, males and females age 40–59	263
11.2a	Limiting long-standing illness: males	266
11.2b	Limiting long-standing illness: females	267
11.3	Cigarette-smoking prevalence by sex and socioeconomic group, Great Britain, 1990	268
11.4	Coronary heart disease mortality (and number of deaths) in seven and a half years by civil service grade and age	269