Preface	xiii
1. Stress as a Psychophysiological Process
Andrew Baum, Laura M. Davidson, Jerome E. Singer, and Stacey W. Street		1
The Nature of Stress	1
Physiological Aspects of the Stress Response	5
Psychological Aspects of the Stress Response	11
Stress, Health, and Illness	15
Post-Traumatic Stress	17
Conclusions	19
2. Measuring Human Sympathoadrenomedullary Responses to Stressors
Joel E. Dimsdale		25
Introduction	25
Signal Emitters	26
Signal Receivers	35
Conclusion	37
3. Occupational Stress and Health: A Multivariate Relationship
Eric M. Cottingham and James S. House		41
The Work Environment as a Modifying Variable	43
The Non-Work Environment as a Modifying Variable	50
Individual Differences as Modifying Variables	53
Conclusions	59

4. Conceptual and Methodological Issues in the Study of Social Support
Camille B. Wortman and Christine Dunkel-Schetter		63
An Overview of Past Work on Social Support	64
Social Support and Cancer	66
Definitions of Social Support	68
Types of Support	70
Sources of Support	73
Strategies in the Measurement of Support	75
The Use of Standardized Scales to Measure Social Support	87
Underlying Causal Mechanisms	92
Alternative Explanations for the Relationship Between Support and Health Outcomes	95
New Directions in Support Research	97
Summary and Conclusions	99
5. Coping and Psychosomatic Illness
Donald Oken		109
Psychosomatic Illness	109
Stress and Illness	111
Social Factors	115
Coping and Pathogenesis	116
Coping in Specificity Theories	118
Physiological Changes Associated With Coping	121
Coping With Illness	126
Conclusions	129
6. The Stressful Effects of Cancer in Adults
Thomas G. Burish, Beth E. Meyerowitz, Michael P. Carey, and Gary R. Morrow		137
Cancer Prevalence	138
Stress Associated With the Diagnosis of Cancer	140
Stress Associated With Cancer Treatments	147
Stress Associated With Remission or Cure	161
Conclusions and Discussion	164
7. Cognitive Complexity and Cardiovascular Response: The Role of Stylistic Variables as Antecedents of Conflict and Stress
Siegfried Streufert and Susan C. Streufert		175

Style and Physiologic Responsivity	175
Interactive Complexity Theory	177
Complexity and Physiological Response		185
Some Theoretical Considerations:
Conflict, Style, and Responsivity	195
Conclusions	199
8. Stress and Type A Behavior:
Interactions Between Environmental and Biological Factors
David S. Krantz, Ulf Lundberg, and Marianne Frankenhauser		203
Introduction	203
Conceptual Framework	205
Stress and Pathophysiology	206
Considerations in Reviewing Physiological Correlates of Type A Behavior	207
Situational Specificity and Physiological Differences		207
Occupational Environment and Type A Behavior: Adaptive and Maladaptive Features	212
Psychobiological Contributors to Type A Behavior		213
Developmental Aspects of Type A Behavior	216
Prevention and Treatment of Type A Behavior		220
Summary and Concluding Comments	223
9. Recent Life Changes, Emotions, and Behaviors in Coronary Heart Disease
Richard H. Rahe		229
Introduction	229
Recent Life Change and CHD	231
Emotions and Behavior	241
Rehabilitation	243
Discussion	245
Appendix	249
10. Interpersonal and Individual Impacts of a Husband's Heart Attack
John L. Michela		225
Focus of Investigation	256
Conceptual Framework for the Study	256
Method	261
Marital Relationship Impacts of Heart Attack		273

General Theoretical, Methodological, and Practical Issues 293

11. Physical Exercise as Stress Management

James A. Blumenthal and James A. McCubbin

Definitions 303

Epidemiological Considerations 305

Comparison of Acute Physiological Adjustments to Physical Exercise and Psychological Stress 306

Physiological Adaptations to Chronic Exercise
Training 310

Psychophysiological Changes Associated With Exercise Training 313

Psychological Benefits of Physical Exercise 316

Mechanisms for the Use of Exercise as Stress Management 321
