

Contents

Acknowledgements	viii
The Authors	ix
1 Personality, social system and cultures as explanations of prejudiced attitudes
Introduction	1
Definition of prejudice	3
Prejudice: the six levels of analysis	4
2 The development of scales for the measurement of prejudiced attitudes
Introduction	9
The empirical study	11
Discussion	19
Conclusions	20
3 Psychological aspects of prejudice: cognitive and dynamic roots
Introduction	22
Cognitive aspects of prejudice	23
Psychological rigidity, dogmatism, closed-mindedness and prejudice	33
Frustration, aggression and prejudice	37
Psycho-analytical explanations of prejudice	39
A study of personal constructs and prejudice	46
Conclusions	50
4 Personality, mental health and prejudice
Introduction: authoritarianism and personality	52
Personality, and the racialism scale in English adolescents	54
Personality, social learning and prejudice	57
A test of the social learning hypothesis with student subjects	59
Mental health, mental illness, and prejudice	62
Prejudice, personality and psychiatric diagnosis	72
Conclusions	81

5	Self-esteem and the development of attitudes
	Theories of the self and the development of attitudes	85
	Self-esteem, streaming, and teachers' expectations	96
6	Self-esteem and prejudice
	Previous research	99
	Problems in the measurement of self-esteem	102
	Measuring self-esteem in a British setting	104
	Self-esteem and prejudice in the Southern High School sample	112
	Enhancing self-esteem and reducing prejudice: an experiment	119
	Two further studies of self-esteem and prejudice	122
	Conclusion and summary	123
7	Parental influence upon self-esteem and racial attitudes in children and adolescents
	Introduction	126
	Parental behaviour and the development of personality	126
	The role of parents in creating self-esteem in children	131
	Parental authoritarianism, self-esteem, and prejudice: some conclusions	135
	Authoritarianism in fathers, and prejudice and poor self-esteem in their sons: an empirical study	137
	Summary	141
8	Cultural influences upon prejudice in Britain
	Introduction	143
	Chauvinistic and racist values and the colonial tradition	144
	Social chauvinism and modern prejudice	149
	Institutional racism	150
	The transmission of the culture of racism through mass media, text books, and children's literature	161
	Prejudice in Britain in comparison with prejudice in France and the Netherlands	167
	Conclusions	173
9	A cross-cultural study of the social psychology of prejudice
	The culture of racism and social psychological studies of prejudice	175
	Prejudice in Britain and the Netherlands – a cross-cultural comparison	178
	Conclusions	187

10 Conclusion and summary
The three levels of analysis	190
Social system influences on prejudice	191
Summary of the psychological findings	194
Racism, prejudice and self-esteem	195
The populist movement in race relations	197
Bibliography	200
Author index	224
Subject index	232