

CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION	vii
I. THE PROBLEM	I
II. THE LACK OF PERSPECTIVE OF THE SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGIST	6
Community-Centrism Due to Lack of Perspective—Standardized Variations in Perception of Familiar Objects and Events—Distance as a Condition for Necessary Perspective—Controversy over Primitive Mentality—Primitive Mentality and Individual Differences—Dualism of Individual vs. Social Approaches—Recent Orientations—Summary
III. THE FRAME OF REFERENCE IN PSYCHOLOGICAL PHENOMENA	26
Psychologizing in the Social Sciences—Some Psychological Data at the Basis of our Problem—The Frame of Reference in Relation to Various Psychological Problems—Conclusion and Implications for our Problem—Summary
IV. STIMULUS SITUATIONS IN SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY	46
Norms First External to the Individual—Some Characteristics of the Stimulus Field—Social Stimulus Situations—Norms as Stimuli, Their Effect on our Outlook—Summary
V. THE INDIVIDUAL IN THE GROUP SITUATION	67
The Individual in Social Contacts—Crowd Situations, Their Negative and Positive Effects—Norms Becoming Common Property in Crowd Situations—Special Properties of Crowd Situations—Implications of the Psychology of "Illusions" for the Study of our Problem—Experimental Approach

VI. THE FORMATION OF A NORM IN A GROUP SITUATION	89
Situations Conducive to the Standardization of New Norms—Hypothesis to Be Tested—The Autokinetic Effect, its Possibilities for our Problem—Procedure—Individual Experiments—Group Experiments—Discussion of Results—Critical, Unstable Situations and the Rise of Slogans
VII. SOCIAL VALUES	113
The Problem of Value—Some Facts from the Psychology of Affectivity—Frames of Reference in Everyday Personal Evaluations—Social Fixations—The Value-Attitude Relationship in Social Psychological Research—Two Major Lines of Research—The Experimental Formation of Attitudes—Advantage of Starting with Established Values Rather than with Items in Individual Response
VIII. BASIC NEEDS AND SOCIAL VALUES	143
Social Regulation of the Ways of Satisfying Needs
IX. BASIC NEEDS AND SOCIAL VALUES (Continued)	154
The Naïve Setting for our Problem—Stages in Ego Formation—A Characterization of the Developing Ego—Involvement of the Ego as a Factor in the Activity Motivated by Basic Needs—The Ego and its Misplacements—The Place of Values in the Make-up of the Ego—Summary
Note 1. RÔLE OF THE INDIVIDUAL IN SOCIETY	187
Note 2. CASES IN WHICH BASIC NEEDS ARE DOMINATING FACTORS	190
X. "HUMAN NATURE"	194
Norms as Survivals
INDEX	205