

Contents

Preface and Acknowledgements		vii
Chapter One	Ideology, Rhetoric and Opinions	1
	Preface	1
	The Paradox of Ideology	5
	Social and Individual Dilemmas	8
	Language and Matters of Opinion	13
	The Contrary Character of Common Sense	20
	Critique of Relativism	22
Chapter Two	Thinking as Arguing	31
	Preface	31
	Rhetoric and Psychology	33
	Cognitive Psychology and Rule-Following	37
	Argumentative Meaning	43
	Arguing and Thinking	46
Chapter Three	Social Representations and Rhetoric	57
	Preface	57
	Universal and Particular Concepts of Social Representations	59
	Anchoring and Objectification	63
	Social Representations and Common Sense	67
	Rhetoric and Social Representations	71
Chapter Four	The Very Ordinary Life of Young Conservatives	79
	Preface	79
	Getting into Politics	83
	Party and Class	88
	Hopes and Achievements	93
	Ideology of Non-Politics	96
Chapter Five	Arguments in Fascist Propaganda	107
	Preface	107
	The National Front and Zionism	110
	Argumentation and Attitudes	112
	The Conspiracy Theory as Argument	115

Chapter Six	The Concept of 'Prejudice'	122
	Preface	122
	Denial of Prejudice	123
	The Norm against Prejudice	125
	The Meaning of 'Prejudice'	128
	Justification and Denial of Prejudice	134
	Conclusion	138
Chapter Seven	Rhetorical and Historical Aspects of Attitudes: The Case of the British Monarchy	142
	Preface	142
	Introduction	142
	Taking the Side of the Other	145
	Implicit Meaning	148
	James Gillray: Critic and Defender of Monarchy	150
	Contemporary Attitudes: Justification and Rationalization	154
	Implicit Justifications and Ideological Contradictions	159
	Conclusions	162
Chapter Eight	The Argumentative Nature of Holding Strong Views	168
	Preface	168
	Introduction	168
	The Study	173
	Variability of Strong Views	185
	Thoughts and Views	190
Chapter Nine	Politics and the Revival of Rhetoric	195
	Preface	195
	Conservatism and Good Speaking	198
	Speaking Well as Persuasion	202
	Future of Rhetoric	207
Index		215