

CONTENTS

	Page
Introduction Stephen Hodkinson	ix
 PART I. POLITICAL AND HEGEMONIC STRUCTURES
1. The Spartan dyarchy: a comparative perspective Ellen Millender (Reed College)	1
2. Hegemonial structures in late archaic and early classical Elis and Sparta James Roy (University of Nottingham)	69
 PART II. SOCIAL INSTITUTIONS
3. Education and pederasty in Spartan and Cretan society Stefan Link (University of Paderborn)	89
4. Drinking from the same cup: Sparta and late Archaic commensality Adam Rabinowitz (University of Texas at Austin)	113
 PART III. RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS AND PRACTICE
5. Spartan 'religion' and Greek 'religion' Michael A. Flower (Princeton University)	193
6. Using few words wisely? 'Laconic swearing' and Spartan duplicity Andrew J. Bayliss (University of Birmingham)	231

PART IV. HELOTS, SPARTANS AND BARBARIANS:
HISTORIOGRAPHY AND REPRESENTATIONS

7. The helots: comparative approaches, ancient and modern 261
Nino Luraghi (Princeton University),
with an Appendix, A note on the etymology of ἑλλώτες
by Timothy Barnes (Harvard University)
8. The colonial ‘subject’ and the ideology of subjection 305
in Lakōnikē: tasting Laconian wine behind Lacanian labels Dorothy M. Figueira (University of Georgia) and Thomas J. Figueira (Rutgers University)
9. Aristomenes and Drimakos: the Messenian revolt in 331
Pausanias’ Periegesis in comparative perspective
Lydia Langerwerf (University of Nottingham)
10. Viewing Spartans, viewing barbarians: visuality in 361
Xenophon’s Lakedaimoniōn Politeia
Rosie Harman (University of Nottingham)

PART V. SPARTAN EXCEPTIONALISM? A DEBATE

11. Was Sparta a normal or an exceptional polis? 385
Mogens Herman Hansen (University of Copenhagen)
12. Was Sparta an exceptional polis? 417
Stephen Hodkinson (University of Nottingham)
13. Spartan exceptionalism? Continuing the debate 473
Mogens Herman Hansen and Stephen Hodkinson
- Index 499