

PART ONE
ANYONE CAN COMMUNICATE
BECAUSE EVERYONE IS A COMMUNICATOR

Prologue: The view from the bridge 3

1 / In the beginning was The Word . . . but no communication 11

2 / Retreat from reality

Whodunnit? 14

One against many 17

The inevitability cop-out 17

The unsweetened truth 20

3 / The truth about Harry

Look beneath the surface 23

The cosmetic approach 25

"Complex" needn't mean "confusing" 26

Relationships 28

Borrow some shoes 29

4 / Speaking of systems

Information processing	31
Emotionalism	33
Establishing a communicating relationship		34
Back to basics	37
Subtleties in system and process		38
Sensing the process	40
Debugging the system	41

5 / Talking back is not back talk

Defining terms	45
Anticipation and distortion		47
Closing the loop	49
Here's to you, Mr. McLuhan		52
The shoemaker's children	56
Employees want to participate		59

6 / A personal approach to personnel relations

The communication climate	62
Toward the nitty-gritty	66
Climate setting: opening corridors		67

PART TWO ORGANIZATION CLIMATE:
MYSTERIES, MYTHS, AND MODELS

7 / Mysteries

In the beginning . . .	75
Regressive organizations	76
Management by mouth	77
Management by ear	81
Message for bargain hunters	82
Center stage	84
Closing skill gaps	85
Roles and relationships	89

8 / Myths

Myth No. 1	94
Myth No. 2	95
Myth No. 3	97
Myth No. 4	101
Myth No. 5	104
Myth No. 6	107

9 / All God's children got models

- We too are models 113
- Even at a distance 114
- What do you want? 115

10 / Playing to win

- Positive attitude 117
- Attitude as a success factor 119
- Setbacks aren't always drawbacks 121
- How hungry are you? 123

11 / To get an even break . . . be your own odds-maker

- Avoid the negative 125
- A check list 126
- The real world 129
- Personal public relations 131
- Getting ahead . . . and keeping it 133

12 / Your organization — a second look, a new perspective

- Get acquainted with your people 137

You gotta know the territory	141
People models — help or hindrance	145

13 / The mix-and-match model

Some get trapped	149
Introspection can be enlightening	150
25 thought-provokers	152
Your autobiography	154
Your eulogy	157

14 / Parochialism — the enemy within

Characteristics of parochialism	160
How it develops	162
Avoiding it	163

15 / Creating a climate for understanding

Setting the climate	167
---------------------	-----

Epilogue: Reflections on the rat race	185
--	------------