

Table of Contents

Preface	vii
List of Publications under the Auspices of the European Association for American Studies	ix
Acknowledgment	xiii
Introduction	1
The Public, the Poet, and Their Problems	7
Pursue the Illusion	15
More Publics, More Poetry, and More Problems	28
I Melancholy Muse and Public Man: Phillis Wheatley and Philip Freneau.	35
The Melancholy Mourner	35
The Mourning Dramatist	39
The Politics of Mourning in a Christian Republic	44
The Muse's Mæcenas: Wheatley's Public and Its Problems	49
Freneau's Evasion of Melancholy	62
From Muse to Nose: Public Poetry goes West	70
Death and Democratic Poetry	79
The Democratic Poet as Indian	85
II The Poet as Role Model: Henry Longfellow and Walt Whitman	89
From Preacher to Teacher	91
From Teacher to Psalmist	105
From Wound-Dresser to Myself	120
From Myself to Wound-Dresser	131
From Wound-Dresser to Psalmist	137

III Forming the Public: Public Poetry between Vachel Lindsay and T. S. Eliot	149
Transforming the Popcorn Crowd: Vachel Lindsay	154
Performing Mind: T. S. Eliot	161
“I will teach you . . . how to perform”: William Carlos Williams	166
Understanding as Forming the World	180
IV Spiritual Historians: Robert Lowell and Robert Hayden	195
White Man Watching	197
The Poet in a Public Pubic Tangle.	203
The Promiscuous Puritan.	209
Lowell the Scrivener	215
Black Man Seeing	218
The Ironic Historian	221
The Religious Historian	228
V The Powerless Power of the Poet.org	235
The Helpless Self	237
Complaining and Confessing	239
The Figure of the Child	242
Recovering the Self-in-Relation	247
Poetry and the Problems of a Global Public	253
Conclusion.	265
Bibliography	267