

Contents

|                                                                                |            |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| List of Figures . . . . .                                               | 9   |
| Paola Spinozzi / Alessandro Zironi                                      |            |
| Introduction . . . . .                                                  | 11  |
| Part I: Origins in Biological and Cultural Processes                    |            |
| Abstracts . . . . .                                                     | 25  |
| Suresh I. S. Rattan                                                     |            |
| Origins of Ageing Mechanisms and Prospects for Anti-ageing              |            |
| Interventions . . . . .                                                 | 29  |
| Alessandro Achilli / Ugo A. Perego                                      |            |
| Mitochondrial DNA: A Female Perspective in Recent Human Origin and      |            |
| Evolution . . . . .                                                     | 41  |
| Paola Spinozzi                                                          |            |
| The Origin of Art: Towards Humanistic-Scientific Theories and           |            |
| Methodologies . . . . .                                                 | 59  |
| Andrea Grignolio / Vita Fortunati                                       |            |
| Memory as the Origin of Biological and Cultural Identity in the Work of |            |
| Samuel Butler . . . . .                                                 | 81  |
| Bibliography Part I . . . . .                                           | 105 |
| Part II: Originating Communication: Behaviours, Emotions,               |            |
| Languages                                                               |            |
| Abstracts . . . . .                                                     | 115 |

|                                                                                                                                    |     |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Augusto Vitale                                                                                                                     |     |
| The Evolutionary Origin of Human Behaviour: the Case of Altruism . . . . .                                                         | 119 |
| Marco Dondi / Sergio Agnoli / Laura Franchin                                                                                       |     |
| A New Look at the Very Early Origins of Smiling . . . . .                                                                          | 131 |
| Laura Bafile                                                                                                                       |     |
| The Debate on the Origins of the Language Faculty in the Perspective ofthe Biolinguistic Programme . . . . .                   | 147 |
| Keith Hoskin                                                                                                                       |     |
| Origins or Geneses? The Roles of Invention . . . . .                                                                               | 163 |
| Bibliography Part II . . . . .                                                                                                     | 181 |
| Part III: Quests for Origins, Origins of Narrations                                                                         |     |
| Abstracts . . . . .                                                                                                                | 191 |
| Marcella Farioli                                                                                                                   |     |
| The Genesis of the Cosmos, the Search for the Arche and the Finding ofAitia in Classical Greek Culture . . . . . | 195 |
| Alessandro Zironi                                                                                                                  |     |
| Searching for Origins: Indo-European Words and NordicRepresentations . . . . .                                                 | 211 |
| Marusca Francini                                                                                                                   |     |
| Origo Gentis and Cultural Memory. The Origins of England as anEmblematic Case Study . . . . .                           | 227 |
| Marianne Børch                                                                                                                     |     |
| The Semantics of Originality as Indicator of the Cultural Paradigm Shiftfrom Medieval to Modern . . . . .                      | 243 |
| Jón Gunnar Þorsteinsson                                                                                                            |     |
| Paradigm as an Origin: Or, Bearing Evidence to the Meaningful Logic ofCause and Effect . . . . .                               | 257 |
| Bibliography Part III . . . . .                                                                                                    | 269 |

|                                        |     |
|----------------------------------------|-----|
| Bio-bibliographical Profiles . . . . . | 275 |
| Index . . . . .                        | 281 |