

Table of contents

Foreword & acknowledgements	vii
Editors' introduction	1
Affixation vs. conversion: The resolution of conflicting patterns Laurie Bauer, Salvador Valera & Ana Díaz-Negrillo	15
The -alis/-aris allomorphy revisited András Cser	33
French property nouns based on toponyms or ethnic adjectives: A case of base variation Georgette Dal & Fiammetta Namer	53
Morphological variation in the construction of French names for inhabitants Elmar Eggert	75
The invisible hand of grammaticalization: West-Germanic substitutive infinitive and the prefix ge- Livio Gaeta	89
Paradigmatic realignment and morphological change: Diachronic deponency in Network Morphology Andrew Hippisley	107
Areal-typological aspects of word-formation: The case of aktionsart-formation in German, Hungarian, Slavic, Baltic, Romani and Yiddish Ferenc Kiefer	129
Variation and change in morphology and syntax: Romance object agreement Michele Loporcaro	149
Optional multiple plural marking in Maay Mary Paster	177
Lettered words: Using Roman letters to create words in Chinese Helena Riha & Kirk Baker	193

Word creation: Definition – Function – Typology Elke Ronneberger-Sibold	201
Pleonastic morphology dies hard: Change and variation of definiteness inflection in Lithuanian Thomas Stolz	217
Index of languages & terms	245
Index of subject & terms	247