

Contents

List of Illustrations	ix
Acknowledgements	xiii
Introduction	i
1. '[T]aking up Plots upon Trust ': Titus Oates and Roger L'Estrange	19
2. '[W]ill you have your Throats cut ere you will believe?': Popish Plot(s)	70
3. 'Tis the Press that has made 'um Mad': Publishing the Popish Plot and Exclusion Crisis	107
4. 'A Popish priest is a certain seducer': Catholics and Anti-Catholicism	140
5. 'Hell, and Rome . . . have long been confederate against us': Jesuits and Protestantism	168
6. 'The Subduing of a Pestilent Heresy': Edward Coleman's Letters	198
7. 'A Matter too hot . . . to be Handled': The Death of Edmund Berry Godfrey	233
8. 'A Few Words among Many, about the Touchy Point of Succession': The Duke of York and the Exclusion Crisis	292
9. 'Have a Care of perverted Authorities': Parliament, Partisanship, and the Earl of Shaftesbury	329
10. 'After-Birth-Inscriptions': Historical Disputes and the Great Fire of London	361

Conclusion	397
Appendices
1. Chronology of the main events mentioned in the text between August 1678 and June 1679	402
2. The Organization of the English Province of the Society of Jesus (1678–85)	407
3. The Test Acts	409
4. The Parliaments of the Popish Plot and the Exclusion Crisis	412
5. The Oath to be sworn by subscribers to the Protestant 'Association'	413
Bibliography	415
Index	445