Contents

List of figures ix
Preface xi
Acknowledgements xiii
Contributors' biographies xvii

PART 1 PLACE

1 The changing teaching and learning environment 3
Mark Hepworth
The cultural and social context 4
The learner 6
The teacher and teaching interventions 7
Tools and technologies 9
Conclusion 11
References 12

2 Transforming the library – e-books and e-buildings 13
Dave Parkes
Introduction 13
The book will eat itself – e-books 2.0 13
What e-books could be – the online or networked book 14
The e-book library – not reading but searching 16
Every searcher a book, every book its e-book reader platform 17
Devices and gadgetry 18

E-publish or perish 21
Google Books – the infinite library 22
The future observed 22
If there were no such thing as libraries would we build them today? 23
The connected building 25
References 28

PART 2 PEOPLE

3 Online social networking, the e-learning holy grail? 33
Geoff Walton
Introduction 33
Background to the study 34
Pilot study 36
Main study 46
Conclusion 60
References 62

4 E-learning models: a Web 2.0 approach to staff development in higher education 67
Jenny Yorke and Helen Walmsley
Best practice models 69
Creating a community 71
Harness collective intelligence 73
Egalitarian participation 75
Social networking 79
Discussion 83
Conclusion 87
References 90

PART 3 TECHNOLOGY

5 A deployment strategy for maximising the impact of institutional use of Web 2.0 95
Brian Kelly
Introduction 95
Examples of uses of Web 2.0 services 96
Maximising the impact of Web 2.0 within an organisation 98
Two tribes 102
Case studies 111
A risk assessment toolkit 116
A risks and opportunities framework 117
References 122

6 Emerging technologies for learning 123
David Ley
Introduction 123
Web 2.0 and social software 127
Web 3.0? 132
Social software on mobile devices 132
Mobile learning 133
Connectivity 137
The mobile internet 140
Changing society, changing learners 152
Conclusion 161
References 162

PART 4 CONCLUSION

7 Meeting the challenge 171
Liz Hart
Introduction 171
Change and connectivity 171

The power of the user 174
Trust and do it yourself 176
Synthesis 177
The smart web 179
Skills full circle 180
Concluding remarks 181
References 182

Index 183