

Contents

Introduction: Sociophonetic Studies of Language Variety Production and Perception	1
Dennis R. Preston, Oklahoma State University and Nancy Niedzielski, Rice University

Part I: Studies of Production

Chapter 1
The Peripatetic History of Middle English * \bar{e}	15
Alice Faber, Haskins Laboratories; Marianna Di Paolo, University of Utah; Catherine T. Best, University of Western Sydney and Haskins Laboratories
Chapter 2
Social and Phonetic Conditioners on the Frequency and Degree of ‘intrusive /r/’ in New Zealand English	41
Jen Hay and Margaret Maclagan, University of Canterbury
Chapter 3
Effects of Consonantal Context on the Pronunciation of /æ/ in the English of Speakers of Mexican Heritage from South Central Michigan	71
Rebecca Roeder, University of North Carolina Charlotte
Chapter 4
Rhythm Types and the Speech of Working-Class Youth in a Banlieue of Paris: The Role of Vowel Elision and Devoicing	91
Zsuzsanna Fagyal, University of Illinois at Urbana–Champaign
Chapter 5
The Sociophonetics of Prosodic Contours on NEG in Three Language Communities: Teasing Apart Sociolinguistic and Phonetic Influences on Speech	133
Malcah Yaeger-Dror, University of Arizona; Tania Granadillo, University of Western Ontario; Shoji Takano, Hokusei Gakuen University; Lauren Hall-Lew, Oxford University

Chapter 6
An Emerging Gender Difference in Japanese Vowel Devoicing 177
Terumi Imai, Wittenberg University

Part II: Studies of Perception

Chapter 7
Regional Stereotypes and the Perception of Japanese
Vowel Devoicing 191
Midori Yonezawa Morris, University of Pennsylvania

Chapter 8
Phonetic Detail, Linguistic Experience, and the Classification of Regional Language Varieties in the United States 203
Cynthia G. Clopper, The Ohio State University

Chapter 9
Perceptions of /a/-fronting Across Two Michigan Dialects. 223
Bartek Plichta, University of Minnesota Twin Cities and Brad Rakerd, Michigan State University

Chapter 10
Belle's Body Just Caught the Fit Gnat: The Perception of Northern Cities Shifted Vowels by Local Speakers 241
Dennis R. Preston, Oklahoma State University

Chapter 11
Linguistic Security, Ideology, and Vowel Perception 253
Nancy Niedzielski, Rice University

Chapter 12
Identification of African American Speech. 265
Erik R. Thomas, North Carolina State University; Norman E. Lass, West Virginia University; Jeannine Carpenter, Duke University

Part III: Studies of Perception and Production

Chapter 13
Phonetic Detail in the Perception of Ethnic Varieties of US English 289
Thomas Purnell, University of Wisconsin–Madison

Chapter 14
 Sound Judgments: Perception of Indexical Features in Children’s Speech 327
*Paul Foulkes, University of York; Gerard Docherty and Ghada Khattab, Newcastle University;
 Malcah Yaeger-Dror, University of Arizona*

Chapter 15
 Avant-garde Dutch: A Perceptual, Acoustic, and Evaluational Study 357
Renée van Bezooijen, Radboud University and Vincent J. van Heuven, Leiden University

Chapter 16
 Aspects of the Acoustic Analysis of Imitation 379
Betsy E. Evans, University of Washington

Chapter 17
 The Cycle of Production, Ideology, and Perception in the Speech of Memphis, Tennessee 393
Valerie Fridland, University of Nevada–Reno

Author Index 411

Subject Index 421