Contents

Preface viii

Prologue: Civilizing Processes 1
The theory of civilizing processes 4
Established–outsiders relations 18
Conclusion: The plan and major themes of the book 20

1 'American Civilization' 23
The Founding Fathers as philosophes 25
'Progress' 26
Fugitive government 28
'Human nature' 33
Conclusion 38

2 'Fellow Americans' and Outsiders 40
Others: the Native Americans 41
Others: the blacks 43
Others: the Europeans 44
Anti-Americanism: how the outsiders view the established 48
Conclusion 50

3 American Manners Under Scrutiny 51
American manners books 53
Americans observed 56
Technology, hygiene and deference 67
Victorianism 73
Informalization 75
Conclusion 80

4	American Aristocracies	81
	The colonial gentry	82
	The South: American Junkers?	85
	The North: working upper classes	94
	From cumulative to dispersed inequalities?	100
	A significant absence: an aristocracy of office	103
	Conclusion	104
5	The Market Society	106
	The constraints of the market	107
	The constraints of organization	115
	Conclusion	120
6	Violence and Aggressiveness	122
	Long-term trends in violence	123
	Is America peculiarly violent?	133
	The Western myth as a form of romanticism	137
	No duty to retreat	138
	Capital punishment	149
	Conclusion	154
7	And Wilderness is Paradise Enow: From Settlements to Independence	158
	Autarky, but not terra nullius	160
	Population	163
	Early phases of the American state-formation process	165
	Conclusion	179
8	But Westward, Look, the Land is Bright: From Frontier to Empire	180
	Manifest destiny and latent dynamics: a necessary theoretical digression	181
	The balance between the planned and the unplanned in US territorial expansion	183
	'Sovereignty' as a function of power ratios	190
	The frontier	193
	Beyond manifest destiny: the beginnings of an American empire	209
	Conclusion	212
9	Integration Struggles	214
	Urbanization and resentment of the city	215
	Immigration	218

Growth of the means of ruling 223
The breakdown: the Civil War and its aftermath 233
A central ambivalence: the armed forces 240
Conclusion 247

10 The Curse of the American Dream 249
Equality and inequality in America 250
The American welfare state 254
Social mobility in America 262
Conclusion: Upwards identification, not mutual identification? 263

11 Involvement, Detachment and American Religiosity 266
Fantasy and the growth of knowledge 268
American religion in long-term perspective 273
Some explanations 282
Odd one out – Europe or the USA? 289
Conclusion 291

12 America and Humanity as a Whole 294
'American social character': diminishing contrasts, increasing varieties 298
The problem of the American homo clausus: the we–I balance 301
Market fundamentalism and diminishing foresight 305
Functional de-democratization 311
The American empire 314
Conclusion: path-dependency in America and the world 320

Notes 323
References 346
Index 373