

Contents

Contributors	vii
Introduction: After “Disgrace”: Lord and Lady Chandos in Cape Town and Adelaide Graham Bradshaw	1
1 Coetzee’s Artists; Coetzee’s Art Derek Attridge	25
2 Responses to Space and Spaces of Response in J.M. Coetzee Carrol Clarkson	43
3 Coetzee on Film Lindiwe Dovey and Teresa Dovey	57
4 “The Language of the Heart”: Confession, Metaphor and Grace in J.M. Coetzee’s Age of Iron Michael Neill	79
5 Disgrace as an Uncanny Revision of Gordimer’s None to Accompany Me Lars Engle	107
6 “Scenes from a dry imagination”: Disgrace and Embarrassment Myrtle Hooper	127
7 David Lurie’s Learning and the Meaning of J.M. Coetzee’s Disgrace Laurence Wright	147
8 J.M. Coetzee and South Africa: Thoughts on the Social Life of Fiction David Attwell	163
9 “The true words at last from the mind in ruins”: J.M. Coetzee and Realism Jonathan Lamb	177

10	Pity and Autonomy: Coetzee, Costello and Conrad Graham Bradshaw	191
11	Slow Man and the Real: A Lesson in Reading and Writing Zoë Wicomb	215
12	Close Encounters: The Author and the Character in Elizabeth Costello , Slow Man and Diary of a Bad Year Barbara Dancygier	231
	Works Cited	253
	Index	265