

Table of Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
1. Introduction	1
1.1. The historical and cultural period: why starting from the Council of Trent?	2
1.2. The historical and cultural period: why ending in 1622?	8
1.3. In synthesis: 1563-1622	16
1.4. The method: why semiotics?	16
1.5. The corpus: what texts?	18
2. Ignatius of Loyola as a sign: religious conversion between divine grace and human will	23
2.1. Ignatius as a convert: the making of a narrative simulacrum	25
2.2. Ignatius as a converter: the making of a narrative model	105
2.3. Ignatius as a hero: from hagiography to epic	167
3. Philip Neri as a sign: religious conversion between internal and external missions	205
3.1. Some biographical remarks	206
3.2. Antonio Gallonio's biography of Philip: historical and semiotic features	211
3.3. Pietro Giacomo Bacci's biography of Philip: historical and semiotic features	267
3.4. Philip's iconography: historical and semiotic features	282
4. Francis Xavier as a sign: conversion between sameness and otherness	321
4.1. A structural definition of "religious mission"	322
4.2. Francis Xavier's biography between history and legend	325
4.3. Francis Xavier's missionary life: a synthesis	327
4.4. Francis Xavier's documents: history and semiotics	330

4.5. The Eurasian fabrication of Francis Xavier's hagiological identity: Orazio Torsellini's Life	467
4.6. The Portuguese fabrication of Francis Xavier's hagiological identity: Joam de Lucena's Life	389
4.7. Hagiographic poems about Francis Xavier	394
4.8. The depiction of a narrative model: images of Francis Xavier's missionary identity	402
5. Therese of Avila as a sign: religious conversion between the cloister and the world	481
5.1. The Jewish background of Therese of Avila	482
5.2. Sanctity and spiritual change in the Libro de la vida	489
5.3. The language of sanctity in Therese's early biographies	506
5.4. A hagiographic poem devoted to Therese	521
5.5. Images of Therese's hagiological identity	525
6. Conclusions	531
Bibliography	537
Abbreviations	537
Primary Sources	539
Secondary Literature	551
Catalogues of Exhibitions	583
List of illustrations	585
Introduction: illustrations	587
Ignatius as a sign: illustrations	587
Philip as a sign: illustrations	591
Francis Xavier as a sign: illustrations	593
Therese of Avila as a sign: illustrations	597
Index of names	599
Index of texts	613
Index of topics	617
Color illustrations	635