

CONTENTS

Introduction	.....	vii
Acknowledgements	.....	ix
List of Participants	.....	x
Publications	.....	xii
List of figures	.....	xiv
List of plates	.....	xvii
I Villages
Introduction		1
Chapter 1. J.G.Hurst:	The topography of Wharram Percy village.	3
Chapter 2. B.K.Roberts:	Of landscapes and words.	21
Chapter 3. J.D.H.Harten & J.Schuyf:	Possible planned medieval villages in the Netherlands.	43
Chapter 4. J.H.P.Van de Vaart:	The brink or village green in brink villages in the province of Drenthe (The Netherlands); its development, contemporary value and prospect.	61
Chapter 5. G.Tiggesbäumker:	Regular rural settlements in 19th century Transcaucasia as a characteristic feature of German colonization.	71
Chapter 6. F.Eigler:	Regular settlements in Franconia founded by the Franks in the Early Middle Ages.	83
Chapter 7. J.Peltre:	Les espaces collectifs villageois: l'exemple des 'uscours' Lorrains.	93

Chapter 8.
K-E.Frandsen:	Glebe and vicarage on the island of Falster, Denmark, in the 17th century.		103
II Villages and fields
Introduction			113
Chapter 9.
D.Hall:	Fieldwork and field books: studies in early layout.		115
Chapter 10.
A.Simms:	Rural settlement in medieval Ireland: the example of the royal manors of Newcastle Lyons and Esker in south County Dublin.		133
Chapter 11.
G.R.J.Jones:	Nucleal settlement and its tenurial relationships: some morphological implications.		153
Chapter 12.
H.-J.Nitz:	Feudal woodland colonization as a strategy of the Carolingian Empire in the conquest of Saxony; reconstruction of the spatial patterns of expansion and colonist settlement morphology in the Leine-Weser region.		171
Chapter 13.
W.Krings:	Late-medieval Dutch settlements in the Lower Rhineland.		185
Chapter 14.
H.Szulc:	Morphogenetic typology of villages and their regulation in Poland: a case study from Silesia and Pomerania.		203
Chapter 15.
B.Windelhed:	Barknåre – a Swedish hamlet in a marginal area but at the centre of an interdisciplinary research project.		217
Chapter 16.
E.Ulsig:	East Jutland villages in the Middle Ages and in 1683, with special emphasis on the allotment of land among villagers.		231

Chapter 17. C.Foutrein:	Essai d'interpretation de la repartition de l'habitat au XVIIIe siècle.	241
III Frontiers
Introduction		253
(a) Land
Chapter 18. S.Brink:	Place-name evidence for rural expansion in marginal areas; an onomastic-geographic study from Central Sweden.	257
Chapter 19. U.Sporrong:	Plains and periphery; settlement morphology in the Mälars basin, Central Sweden.	275
Chapter 20. M.Linke:	Medieval deserted fields and deserted villages in the Lower Harz mountains - an interim report.	293
Chapter 21. P.Sereno:	Ecology and marginal lands; a former phase of retreat of settlement and agricultural limits in the Western Italian Alps.	307
Chapter 22. M.Cabouret:	Notes sur les limites supérieures de l'habitat dans les montagnes de la péninsule Scandinave.	317
Chapter 23 P.T.H.Unwin:	The changing identity of the frontier in medieval Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire.	339
Chapter 24. H.Becker:	Development and change in the function of central places in an isolated mining region at the settlement frontier of the Boreal forest; the example of the Klondike gold-field in the Northwestern Canadian mining frontier.	353

(b) Economic

Chapter 25. I.Leister:	Rural industries in Hesse in the nineteenth century: village structure and "Re-Agrarization".	369
Chapter 26. V.Hansen:	The Danish hosiery industry; a specific rural industry in Central Jutland.	385
Chapter 27. J.Pinard:	Une industrie rurale originale; les anciennes verreries.	401
Chapter 28. R.I.Hodgson:	Links between agriculture, coal mining and population in County Durham, with particular reference to the North Durham coalfield, c. 1550-1810.	415